THIS BACKHOE is similar to the one reported missing by Canton officials. The Department of Public Works had one parked at Hanford and Sheldon Wednesday night, and since then it has been missing. The vehicle is valued at $13,000.

Canton DPW loses backhoe

By RICHARD GOLD

CANTON—"It's not the kind of thing you can hide in your lunchbox," commented Clerk John Flodin, "but it is worth $13,000." It's a backhoe and the township Department of Public Works owns it—but it appears someone else is now using it.

The backhoe has been missing from Hanford and Sheldon since Wednesday, Jan. 29, and township officials fear the machine has been stolen.

Unfortunately, the backhoe is not insured. Flodin said, "through an oversight the vehicle was not insured. It was during election time and we had so much going on I'm afraid we overlooked it."

Explained Jake Dingeldey, working general foreman for the DPW: "We were out putting in water taps on Wednesday and its been missing since. It must be a professional job, but I can't understand it— it wasn't more than 20 feet away from a bunch of houses. There's a subdivision right there."

According to Dingeldey, this is the first time in 15 years equipment has been pilfered from the township. "I've been here 11 years and there hasn't been anything taken. A couple of years ago some kids hotwired a dump-truck and drove it into a creek bed, but there hasn't really been anything stolen."

Dingeldey added: "There ought to be some way of controlling or licensing this equipment. It all looks alike—you can't just walk up to a contractor and ask to look at his equipment—I wouldn't. Of course I'd recognize this one if I saw it."

Detective Eugene Derengowski of the Wayne County Sheriff's Road Patrol said that often machinery of this kind is stolen by other contractors "because of its limited use to most people."

Derengowski added: "We've put it on the teletype, but that's about all we can do. They might try scanning the area with a helicopter, that's about all we can suggest."

Dingeldey has been looking for the backhoe "for the last several days" and says he has contacted Ford dealers so they can put it on their list of stolen merchandise. But he comments: "So far we really don't have any good leads. It seems the contractors who might know about it don't want to get involved.

According to the DPW foreman, however, the area is popular for equipment thieves. At Christmas time one contractor working in the area lost a trailer and an $8,000 laser beam used in survey work.

At this time it is unclear who will pay for the missing machinery and township officials are hopeful the vehicle will be recovered before they have to figure that out.

Said Flodin: "We've got a ton of people looking out for it and I think we've got a good chance of getting it back."

Slaying suspects waive extradition

Three suspects charged with the murder of Canton resident Terry L. Buchman will be arraigned before a visiting judge Saturday, Feb. 8 at the Wayne County Prosecuter's office on Henry Ruff Road.

The three were originally scheduled to appear before Judge Dunbar Davis on Friday, but they will not arrive until Friday afternoon.

The suspects, Barry L. Provow, 27; his wife Leslie, 18, and Robert W. Umney, 22, were picked up in Cheyenne, Wyo., last Friday night.

Four members of the Wayne County Sheriff's Patrol, including detective Larry Patterson and Robert Pond, who headed the investigation of the murder, left Wednesday to pick up the three suspects, currently being held at Laramie.

The suspects waived an extradition fight, according to Patterson, and he says that the biggest problem in the extradition proceedings has been "the reams of paperwork " involved.

However, the detective also voiced some concern over the flight back.

He commented, "You know, some people will be upset with us on the plane and of course there's the problem with guns on planes these days—but we don't anticipate any trouble."

When the suspects were picked up by the Albany County Highway Patrol in Wyoming, they were driving what was thought to be the same car they had used to abduct Buchman and Lloyd Cash the morning of the murder.

The car was stopped in Cheyenne with Oklahoma license plates on it and a set of Florida plates inside the car. Wayne County detectives think that they may have gone to Florida before heading west.

According to Patterson, the Albany

Interim zoning rules near board approval

By RICHARD GOLD

CANTON—The township planning commission and board of trustees took one more step Tuesday night toward finishing the proposed interim zoning ordinance.

Four areas in the 30 page text were of major concern, in a study session between the two governmental bodies and they were items that drew heavy fire from builders who attended the Jan. 21 public hearing.

The sign ordinance again attracted the most attention as planning commissioners had a hard time reaching a consensus on two major issues in the proposed document.

The first question in the sign text concerned directional signs used by builders and land developers to direct potential customers to their houses and subdiyisions. It was agreed to limit each builder to two directional signs regardless of the number of sites he was working on. The issue revolved around whether land developers, developments or subdivisions, or builders should be granted the two signs.

Building Inspector Charles Thompson said that while there were approximately 30 builders operating in the township, there were only six or seven developments and only 11 or 12 land developers currently in Canton.

Trustees Brian Schwall, Gerald Cheske, Robert Myers and Planning Commissioner Gus Matzo were in favor of limiting developments to two signs. But the rest of the planning commission and Trustee James Poole and Clerk John Flodin favored granting each builder two signs.

Matzo commented that the purpose of directional signs was "for direction and not advertising" and that getting a prospective buyer into a subdivision was sufficient. Schwall and Cheske concurred and Cheske added. "That's a possible 60 signs, more than we have right now." He continued, "Ford Road is a sign jungle." Matzo said, "Plymouth township has no directionals at all and they seem to be doing all right."

Planning Commissioner Bob Simmons replied, "These things are interim measures so let's not fuss about it so much." He asked for a consensus and the vote was 7-4 in favor of granting the builders two signs apiece.

The directional signs will be limited to 20 square feet when the ordinance becomes effective and the builders will be asked to place a $100 deposit on each sign. They would forfeit the money if the sign detiorated or was not removed when the subdivision was finished and occupied.

Political signs will be limited to five square [illegible] and can only be erected 40 days before an election. They would have to be removed one day after the election.

The final draft of the ordinance also stipulated that no more billboards would be allowed in the township.

The Planned Unit Development section (PUD) of the old zoning ordinance was deleted by the planners because it was felt that PUDs "might not be a good idea" and because as Chairman Joseph Kinnick said, "Once we sign the PUD contract we lose all control over the development.

Bart Berg asked that the section on PUDs remain in the ordinance but only Flodin and Poole agreed with him.

The item that was of greatest interest to builders, concerned the size of side yard footage in the R1—C (60 foot) lot. It was amended to read that only five feet of space were necessary on each side of a house with an attached garage. Originally the interim zoning change had read five feet on

Substitutes' roles change

By DARLENE STINSON

The bell rang 10 minutes ago, and Mr. or Mrs. Teacher is not yet in the classroom.

"Maybe he's sick," the students whisper over ill-concealed smiles, painting mental pictures of a "fun" day with an "easy" substitute teacher.

To the dismay of teachers and administrators alike, those mental pictures were sometimes not far off base in the Plymouth Community School District, where substitute teachers in recent years pocketed pay for a baby-sitting task, and regular teachers left inadequate lesson plans for substitutes who wished to teach.

A NEW substitute evaluation plan, implemented in the district this year, will shatter the "goof-off" visions of subject-weary students and, hopefully, continue the educational task while a regular teacher is away from the classroom.

A three-way evaluation plan works to improve the continuity of education under the new program.

- A substitute teacher evaluates his own performance and such materials as lesson plans and individualized instructions regarding students, which the regular teacher left behind, for each substitute assignment.
- The classroom teacher evaluates the substitute on the basis of lesson plans implemented and student reaction. The teacher recommends return or dismissal of the substitute.
- The building principal evaluates the substitute's performance and personal qualities plus the regular teacher's organization of materials for substitute use.

The evaluations are submitted twice a year to Norman Kee, administrative assistant of personnel, for his review.

"We want to know what kind of job is done, and which substitutes we should keep," said Kee. "I think we want this kind of evaluation, because we're trying to make the teachers prepare for substitutes."

Regarding "goof-off" periods, which students sometimes enjoyed under substitutes in former years, Kee added: "I feel this is what we're trying to correct."

Kee called the new program "a more direct kind of continual evaluation" than evaluation procedures formerly used.

UNTIL SEPTEMBER, substitutes received evaluations only twice a year. Evaluations are now conducted on a per-assignment basis.

"It wasn't the formalized, all-covering type of evaluation we have now," Kee said.

An average of 25 substitutes, who receive a daily wage of $28, this year fill the district's classrooms each day, Kee said. That amounts to about five per cent of the district's regular teaching staff and an annual cost of about $126,000.

Teachers, unlike employes in other lines of work, must be replaced when unable to work.

"It's a problem, and an expensive problem," Kee admits. "But when you have a staff of 600 working with kids who contact diseases, this is not an unrealistic type of absenteeism.

"There are some who abuse sick days, but I'd say the majority of teachers don't abuse sick leave privileges. A substitute figure of five per cent isn't really that high. In fact, it's quite low compared to some other districts."

A new unemployment compensation act, effective Jan. 1, could hike the cost of substitutes even higher. Substitute teachers are eligibile for unemployment benefits, financed by the district, if they work 12 hours a week for 14 weeks in a single district.

But Kee does not believe the Plymouth School District will end up paying substitutes unemployment benefits. The district's list of substitute teachers has swollen to 200 in recent years, while more applicants fill a waiting list. The district employs its substitutes on a rotating basis.

"With a list of 200 people or more, it would be difficult for a substitute to

Area parents tell state their views on strikes by school teachers

By DENNY COFFMAN

ALLEN PARK—School officials, teachers' representatives and parents from Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties paraded before the Senate Labor Committee Monday to air their views on proposed regulations of teacher-school board collective bargaining.

The hearing was the first of three scheduled throughout the state. A second hearing will be held Feb. 17 at Traverse City; and the last will be at Lansing, Feb. 28.

The hearings will help the committee, composed of senators David Plawecki (D-Dearborn Heights), John Welborn (R-Kalamazoo), Gary Corbin (D-Clio) and Alvin DeGrow (R-Pigeon) to modify proposals in response to public testimony.

The Labor Committee has offered two proposals that grant the option of limited teachers strikes; in effect, the proposals would legalize the strikes.

Both proposals call for compulsory arbitration, to take effect either automatically or at the request of one of the parties involved in teacher contract negotiations.

Both proposals suggest penalties on school boards and teachers for refusal to accept binding arbitration.

Geraldine Joyner, executive board member of the Wayne County Association of School Boards and a Livonia Board of Education member, objected to placing economic penalties upon board members.

"Most board members serve for expenses only; many are 'home engineers' like myself," said Mrs. Joyner, a housewife.

She called for a timetable to speed up the bargaining process.

"We also need a mediator with the authority to send both parties back to the bargaining table. We need penalties as a deterrent to illegal strikes." She indicated, however, that the Michigan Association for School Boards is opposed to binding arbitration but suggested that if it is used, it be limited to "last best offer."

Surprisingly, Mrs. Joyner favored a limited teachers' strike, one of the options included in the committee's proposals.

School boards must also deal with unions representing school employes other than teachers, she said, and this adds complications.

She said the Livonia Board of Education has to deal with five unions, representing bus drivers, cafeteria workers and others.

Kenneth Eastman, representing Garden City Concerned Parents, asked for an end to the present state requirement of 180 school days in the calendar year (a qualification for state aid).

Several speakers later questioned the reason for selecting 180 days as the minimum school year; the Garden City board is currently fighting a court battle to reduce the number.

Eastman said he favored a limited teachers' strike, but sympathy strikes should be punished. He favored compulsory arbitration as a last resort but worried about an arbitrator being "knowledgeable enough."

Eastman brought out a point that was to be emphasized repeatedly during the hearing.

What happens, he asked, if a school board is required to come up with more millage to provide funds to pay higher teachers' salaries as stipulated by an arbitrator?

"Deficit spending is unlawful," said Eastman. He said a board might be faced with curtailing services and reducing the school day. "We don't want half days," he maintained.

Eastman concluded his testimony on an ominous note for residents of Garden City.

"Millage has always passed in Garden City," he said. "But now there is no way it will pass because of the animosities created by the teachers' strike."

The negotiability of class size brought a sharp difference of opinion from teachers and administrators.

"Class size is a negotiable item," said Mary Ellen Riordan, president of the Detroit Federation of Teachers. "The conditions they (school boards) want to remove (small classes) are the conditions we teachers need to operate," said Mrs. Riordan.

One administrator testified that class size was not negotiable, because of changes in attendance at specific schools. He contended that if a student moves into a neighborhood and there is no room for him in a class limited in size, then he must be bused to another school.

Mrs. Riordan concurred with administrators and board members who were skeptical about bringing in an "unknowledgeable" arbitrator.

"Compulsory arbitration means that a third party makes the decisions instead of the parties involved," she said.

She was decisive about strikes. "Teachers must be allowed to bargain collectively and effectively, and that involves the right to say 'no.' Collective bargaining will work if both sides are relatively even."

Sandra Gilmore, representing Crestwood Concerned Parents, called for an earlier deadline to teacher-board negotiations. "Let the boards and the teachers negotiate on their own time," she said.

She said she feared that teachers who had been on strike would "take out their hostilities" in the classroom.

She pleaded for legislators to "avoid backscratching."

Sonja Toundaian, of the Crestwood Civic Action Group, said the Public Employment Relations Act has been used by teachers "as a means of grabbing power" and engaging in "gorilla warfare."

She suggested prohibiting "mutual aid pacts" among teachers and accused the Michigan Education Association of "instigating a breach of employment."

Mrs. Toundaian claimed that the Crestwood School District had lost $13,000 a day during the teacher strike in that district.

Middle school students explore their diets

By DARLENE STINSON

PLYMOUTH— Candy and soda pop may tickle the teenage palate, but their nutritional value amounts to nil.

Herbie and Harry, Oscar and Otis, and Tiny and Tim, six white rats which have taken up residence in the East Middle School showcase, are trying to prove the point to students.

The rats are part of a nutrition experiment, conducted by eighth graders in Jacquelyn Troutman's home economics course.

"What you eat does make a difference," said Mrs. Troutman. "This is what we'd like students to discover. If students haven't been eating properly, we'd like them to discover they can start now."

The six rats, divided into three separate groups, nibble away at three separate diets in a front showcase of East Middle School, where middle and elementary students from the adjoining elementary school stop to watch their progress.

ONE GROUP of rats, Mrs. Troutman explained, feeds on a well-balanced diet, composed of food from the four basic groups— milk, meat and eggs, fruits and vegetables and bread and cereal.

Two rats in another group eat the same basic diet, but they are denied the calcium that comes from milk.

The third group eats perhaps the most popular food from a student viewpoint—a diet typical of most teenagers' eating habits. Fruit and vegetables are absent from that diet, and little milk is consumed. Such items as jelly toast, french fries, cupcakes, soda pop and apple pie are predominant.

If all goes well, rats in the teenage group will appear fat with shabby coats and scaly tails by the end of the six- or eight-week experiment, Mrs. Troutman explained.

Rats in the second group, whose diet lacks milk, will grow the least from lack of calcium. Rats in the first group, who consumed a well-balanced diet, will appear the healthiest.

THE RATS are products of the same litter, Mrs. Troutman explained, and weighed approximately the same when they arrived at the school two weeks ago. To insure that rats eat all portions of their diet, the food is mashed in a blender before it is served on a twice-daily basis.

Results so far diverge slightly from expectations.

"We're not real sure what's going to happen to the 'teenage' rats," said Mrs. Troutman, as she glanced at a chart depicting weight chages so far. "They're a little short on calcium."

Contrary to expectations, rats in the well-balanced food group have gained the most weight so far— an average of 96 grams. Rats in the "teenage" group have gained 82 grams, but their coats have already grown shabby. Rats with the milk-free diet have gained only 78.

But, as Mrs. Troutman pointed out, four or six weeks are left to the experiment, and results can change.

Students appear enthusiastic about the experiment so far, and some say results could change their own eating habits.

"I don't eat exactly that way," said eighth grader Mary Stevenson of the "teenage" diet, "but it's helping me choose food a little better.

"It's fun, and it's a good experiment," she added. "It helps us see that how you eat affects your growth pattern and disposition."

Amy Ort added, "Maybe I'll start eating a little bit better. The experiment is suspenseful. You're just waiting for the results, but I like playing with the rats the most."

Wayne-Westland CAC asks for portable classrooms

By STEVE BARNABY

WESTLAND — After three months of study, the P. D. Graham Elementary School citizen advisory commmitte has recommended that the Wayne-Westland School District purchase portable units to house the school's growing population.

The study was presented at this week's school board session.

The committee was instituted by the school board when controversy arose over whether to bus the overflow school population to Tinkham or provide the portable units.

Presently, 180 students living in the Graham region are being bused to Tinkham Elememtary on Venoy south of Cherry Hill. The majority of those transported are sixth graders.

A main feature of the committee's recommendation is to allow those parents now transporting students to Tinkham to have a choice of continuing to do so, or to send their children to Graham, according to Committee Chairman Donald Schlagheck.

PRESENTLY, the board is studying the commitee's recommendation and plans to take action within a month. The board has the option of either agreeing with the committee's recommendations or forming a plan of its own.

The committee recommended that the board lease or purchase from eight to twelve relocatable classrooms to be erected on the Graham site at John Hix and Avondale and, if possible, that the units be connected to the main building.

"The best estimate would indicate that a minimum of eight units would be needed by the September 1975-76 school year and each succeeding year, until enrollments have reached a peak," says the report.

THE PEAK, 1,000 students, is expected to be reached by 1979-80.

Twelve portable units would house about 300 students, using a ratio of 25 students to one teacher. This would house the present Graham students from kindergarten through sixth grade, according to the committe's study.

The cost for providing portable units from 1975 through 1980 would be $315,086. Busing costs in that same period would be $248,000, according to the study.

Although the portable units have a 27 per cent cost increase over the busing costs, outright purchase of the units would reduce the cost about 21 per cent.

The cost of busing reflects a six year period.

"Enrollment in all probability will not drop off immediately, so that all students will then attend Graham," says the report.

"Busing costs will remain until the enrollment reductions reach the capacity of the school."

COST OF LEASING the eight units for six years would be $216,815. This includes installation and sewer and electrical installation.

After the sixth year, the district would technically purchase the units for $1. Leasing the units is set at a three year minimum, with removal costing $500.

Connecting corridors would add $5,400 to the total, if that option was chosen.

If parents chose to have their children remain in the Tinkham School, the board would provide the transportation.

The lunchroom policy regarding eligibility to stay for lunch at Graham would be revised. The committee recommended a one-half mile limit to be set for students going home for lunch.

IN MAKING the study, the committee examined 14 plans of various combinations.

Included in the study were census studies, feasibility of building additions and relocatable units, busing costs, redistricting attendance areas, the value of neighborhood schools and discussion of the IGE program.

Graham School is conducting a pilot curriculum of individualized learning. The program is being developed in other buildings in the district, but Tinkham is operating under the traditional system.

"Our deliberations have always centered around the children and the value of educational program offerings," says the report. "particularly, the program the board has provided at the Graham school.

"SUPPORT FOR the neighborhood school has been a hallmark of the Wayne-Westland Board of Education. Certainly further deterioration of this concept should be weighed heavily.

"The neighborhood school must certainly be recognized as an important factor in most home purchases and the settling factor for children with peer groups and school ties."

The committee stressed that Graham must be allowed to "go through its growing pains" with little disruption in its program.

"The Jan. 15 meeting with concerned parents of the Graham attendance area again reaffirmed their strong desire to have a complete kindergarten through sixth grade program and support for housing all the student body at Graham," the report continued.

"Although our study of the problem has brought us to one recommendation, it goes without saying, the committee supports its conclusion without reservation."

PLYMOUTH—Loop road proponents may have won a significant round in the 15-year attempt to place a thoroughfare around the central business district in the city.

Acting unanimously, the city commmission has voted to test the practicality of the loop road on exisiting streets. According to City Manager Fred Yockey, the test of the loop road could take place within 90 days.

Mayor Beverly McAninch, an opponent of the loop road said, "I think it's highly desirable to give the loop road a test, since there is such a big debate over the proposal."

Yockey said he felt the unanimous action of the commission was a "significant move," adding that this will give those on either side of the question the opportunity to look at some facts of the project.

THE COMMISSION action came after the completion of a study by a traffic consulting firm, Reid, Cool and Michalski.

In accepting the report of the consulting firm, the commission authorized further work by the consultants.

Within 60 days the consultants will draw up signal plans for a new traffic light at Union Street and Ann Arbor Trail.

According to Police Chief Timothy Ford, the police department has recommended a light at that intersection in the past. While the corner is not a "high accident" interesection, the chief noted that it has continued to be a "problem area."

The installation of the light will enable the city to begin a real test of the loop road's feasibility. Other work scheduled to be performed by Reid, Cool and Michalski includes checking all traffic signals in the central business district and determining the need for any improvements, including additional equipment and the possibility of changing the timing at each intersection.

The consultants also will design criteria for the loop road and draw up a list of signs, including locations and sizes needed, to begin the test of the loop road system.

YOCKEY SAID that this second project by the consultants will be completed within the next 60 days, adding that it would take another 30 days after that to have the signs painted and erected to put the test of the loop road into operation.

The cost of this study by the consultants will be $5,225.

In discussions just prior to the meeting, Commissioner Harold Guenther said he felt the cost was in line.

"If we save a couple of smash-ups at Ann Arbor Trail and Union, we've already saved $5,000."

The first report by Reid, Cool and Michalski included traffic data collected by the AAA in 1972 and some added figures compiled for several intersections in December by the city's engineering department. From these figures, the consultants concluded that the proposed loop road, as presented to the commission by Vilican-Leman earlier in the year, was feasible as originally designed.

The consultants cited two problems in testing the loop road using the existing streets wihout improvements. The first problem is the jog and unexpected stop sign on Church Street behind city hall.

THE SECOND is the lack of a light at the Ann Arbor Trail—Union Street intersection. Commission action removed this problem, with the proposal to install the light on Ann Arbor Trail.

The other problem will remain until a completed loop road receives the go-ahead from the commission.

The proposal calls for the road to run from the corner of Church and Harvey southerly to Wing Street, east to Deer, north on Deer to Ann Arbor Trail, across Ann Arbor Trail to Union Street and north on Union Street to Church. From that point the route will turn west on Church, cross Main Street and end at Harvey Street.

Substitute teachers' roles change

get the qualifying amount of work."

Kee said beginning teachers in the Plymouth School District are entitled to 10 sick or personal leave days a year. Tenure teachers are entitled to 12 days, while five-year veterans of the district are allowed 15.

Teachers must be replaced, when they take advantage of those days.

"Substitutes are not as good as having teachers in the classroom," Kee admits. "But we feel it's not as bad as someone coming in to babysit. The best we can do is have trained specialists."

UNLIKE FORMER years, when many substitutes were college students, the district mainly employs substitutes who hold college degrees and teaching certificates, Kee said, to further improve the quality of substitute teaching.

A teacher call-in machine, on which classroom teachers record messages of planned absences at any time, enables the district to notify substitutes early in the morning or late at night.

Juanita Kahrl, the district's secretary for substitute teachers, is able to check the machine from her home at night through a special telephone device.

The machine, Kee explained, enables the district to obtain the best possible substitutes for various teacher vacancy slots.

"We usually try to place substitutes in the field of their competence. A lot of these substitutes are on a lot of districts' lists. They sometimes substitute all week."

Tactics to improve substitute teaching in the district center on the new evaluation program.

But is the plan working?

"We think it is," said Kee, "But we just started it in September, and really haven't had time to evaluate it."

BILL BROWN, principal of Plymouth Salem High School, gets a close peek at substitutes who cross his school's doorstep.

"I think it's working much better," Brown said of the new evaluation package, "because it requires the teacher to tell us about the lesson plans that were left. I think it's a two-way thing— a much better instrument to guage what went on. I think it's given us a closer look at our substitutes."

Ronald South, principal of Fiegel Elementary School, agreed.

"The evaluation is a new set-up, and it is effective. It gives us more feedback. It also gives us a good indication of how well plans have been left for the substitute."

Carl Taylor, principal of East Middle School, views the evaluation plan in a similar light.

"Anytime you evaluate someone in writing, that person is more conscious of what he's doing. The evaluation is effective, in as much as the substitue carries out the wishes of the teacher.

"It breaks down if substitutes are unavailable in a certain area. If a gym teacher is subbing for a music class, then he'll just sit there."

Canton recognizes IAFF

CANTON—Township fire fighters have an official union as the result of a township board resolution on Jan. 28. The board recognized IAFF (International Association of Fire Fighters' Local 2289) as the exclusive bargaining agent for Canton's full time firemen.

Explained Capt. Vernon Rorabacher, "We joined the union in July last year, but the board didn't recognize that until now. We used to just go before the board when the contract was up and talk to board members. Now we have the union."

Rorabacher added that the full time fire department had been in effect since January 1972. "Before that," he commented, "we were a volunteer outfit for some 20 years."

one side and 10 on the other.

The builders had responded that this would "put many of them out of business and that a smaller "lower quality house" would result from this decision.

Planner Mike Manore explained that a new zoning district should replace the R1-C district currently used. It would make the smallest single family lot 65 feet in width, rather than the 60 currently designated in the R1-C district.

But he added, "We should wait until the final draft of the new zoning ordinance to do that.

"We have to redistrict to to make it legal and I suggest we wait on that— it'll take a lot of time and a public hearing."

The site plan review procedure also underwent some scrutiny and the final interim proposal will read that all builders have one year as soon as the interim ordinance is adopted to begin construction without being subject ot site plan review. If however, previously approved site plan does not conform with the new ordinance, an altered site plan would have to be submitted.

All proposals will be sent to the Wayne County Planning Commissions for their recommendation. When those recommendations are received by the towship board it will vote on the interim ordinance deciding its fate.

County Highway Patrol also found a shotgun in the car.

The detective added, "They did a fantastic job out there. They went by the rules, got the warrant and found the gun. They did everything right."

Umney and Provow both have lengthy arrest records. At the time of the murder they were on parole from the State Prison at Jackson where they had been serving time for separate counts of armed robbery.

New jobless benefits draw few applicants

Fewer than 5,000 applicants filed for the new Special Unemployment Assistance (SUA) program of the Michigan Employment Security Commission during the first two weeks the program was in operation.

"We estimate about 60,000 persons in Michigan may be eligible to file for SUA benefits but aren't doing so," says S. Martin Taylor, MESC Director.

FOR THE PERIOD of Jan. 13-25, only 829 applicants from Wayne and Macomb counties filed at the Michigan State Fairgrounds and only 265 Oakland County applicants filed at the Pontiac Armory.

"Statewide the total was 2,887 applying for the first week and 1,782 the second week. In all cases, fewer persons filed the second week, although we had expected the numbers would increase as persons learned about the program by word of mouth."

Taylor adds that for every week applicants delay filing, they may lose benefits. "Persons may file for SUA until Dec. 3, 1975, but their benefits will be based on their average earnings during the previous 52 weeks. Starting next week, persons will lose credit for benefit weeks more than 52 weeks old."

THE SUA program is federally funded, unlike regular unemployment programs which are paid for by employers.

Taylor urges householders, farmers, governmental and school jurisdictions to inform all former employes who might be eligible for the new program.

Persons are eligible if they were previously ineligible to collect unemployment insurance and weren't self-employed. They must have worked at least 14 of the last 52 weeks, earning more than $25 in each of those 14 weeks.

Anyone who thinks he or she might be eligible should pick up an SUA form at any MESC office, Social Services office or Post Office and fill it out at home. They should then report to a location specified on the map which accompanies each form.

APPLICANTS should report according to the last digit of their Social Security number.

If it is 0 or 1, report on Monday; 2 or 3, Tuesday; 4 or 5, Wednesday; 6 or 7, Thursday; and 8 or 9, Friday. MESC offices are open from 8:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

They should bring with them their completed application, Social Security card, two pieces of identification such as driver's license and voter's registration, and (if possible) their last pay stub, W-2 form or even a letter from their employer.

When reporting for the first time, applicants will be interviewed, register for work with MESC's employment service, and certify that they are able, available and actively seeking work. Failure to return the certification or to report any earnings on the certification form will result in a loss of benefits.

Taylor strongly urges all persons previously employed as domestics, farm workers, and school district or municipal employes file for SUA benefits if they are currently out of work.

"It is important these persons file and begin to receive their benefits. For many of them, it may be their only source of income, and for Michigan it will mean a shot in the arm as the money is spent and recirculated into the economy.

"In fact," Taylor concludes, "we estimate $92 million in SUA funds will be available in the state."

Bonus forms available

Application forms for the Vietnam veteran bonus are now available at local branches of the Secretary of State's office.

To qualify, a veteran must have been a Michigan resident for at least six months before entering the service and must have been on active duty for at least 190 days between Jan. 1, 1961 and Sept. 1, 1973.

Combat veterans are entitled to receive a $600 cash bonus and are defined as those eligible to wear the Vietnam Service Medal or the Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal. Some 140,000 persons are thought to qualify for the combat bonus.

Another 312,000 veterans, not entitled to these medals and who did not see combat, are entitled to draw a bonus of $15 for each month of service, up to a maxium of $450.

About 4,000 widows, children and parents of veterans will receive death benefits equal to those of the veterans who died of service-connected causes.

Bonuses are non-taxable.

Home economists study Madonna use of TV

Home economists from throughout Michigan recently visited Madonna College in Livonia to look at its television operation for instructional purposes.

In a one-day workshop, some 15 women employed by the Dairy Council of Michigan used the Madonna studio to learn the basics of television production as well as how to perform in front of the camera.

The workshop was conducted by Charles D. Derry, television instructor for Madonna College and stage manager for a Detroit television station.

"We would like to use television more in promoting good eating habits and proper nutrition," explains Irene Cameron of Livonia who is coordinator of communication for the Dairy Council, "but most of us need to learn television's possibilities and limitations."

The women represent the council in Lansing, Traverse City, Flint, Jackson, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek and the Detroit area. They work with doctors, dentists and para-professionals teaching nutrition. They also work in the schools.

Madonna's television studio is available for use by other groups which might want to learn production for either educational or entertainment use.

Conference to examine new sex law

Another first in the history of the Criminal Justice Institute will be realized Saturday, Feb. 8, when it sponsors a conference on the new state Criminal Sexual Conduct Law.

This will be the first time at CJI that prosecutors, police officers, defense attorneys and judges will meet to discuss a common problem on a one-to-one basis.

Michigan's new Criminal Sexual Assault Conduct Law (PA 266) goes into effect April 1. The conference has been designed to acquaint attorneys and police officers with the new law, explain its implications and provide practical tips on how to work with it.

The conference will be held in the institute at 6001 Cass Avenue, Detroit, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. It is free to police officers, members of the prosecutor's staff, and defense lawyers. The cost is $10 for students and $15 for non-students.

Sponsors include the Criminal Justice Institute, Wayne County Prosecutor, Prosecuting Attorney's Association of Michigan, and the Michigan Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers.

"We have the best inter-disciplinary group of conference leaders available," says James N. Garber, executive director of the CJI.

Among the speakers are Inspector Ed Hay, Detroit Police Women's and Children's Service Section, Jan BenDor, Women's Crisis Center of Ann Arbor, Zolton Hunyadi, a psychiatric social worker, Virginia Norby of the University of Michigan Law School, Terrance and Pat Boyle, prosecutors for Wayne County.

Oakway Symphony, Livonia Civic Ballet will perform Feb. 16 at Madonna

Madonna College in Livonia, with the support of the Michigan Council for the Arts, will present the Oakway Symphony Orchestra and the Livonia Civic Ballet in a combined performance Sunday, Feb. 16 at 3 p.m. The program will be in the Madonna Activities Center on Schoolcraft Road at Levan.

Under the direction of Francesco DiBlasi, the symphony will perform overture "Der Frieschutz" by Weber, the moderato and andante con moto movements of Schubert's symphony No. 8 in B minor-unfinished and excerpts from "Damnation of Faust" by Berlioz.

The Livonia Civic Ballet, a corps of 16 young people directed by Jean G. Newell, will perform a Russian Divertisement to selections by Khachaturian, including Dance of the Young Maidens from "Gayne" and several numbers from "Masquerade." They also will perform to the Russian Sailor Dance from "The Red Poppy" by Gliere and to selections from the contemporary rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar."

Tickets are available at Madonna College, Hudson's ticket service, Grinnell's and the Hammell Music stores. General admission is $2, and $1.50 for students. Because of the support of the MCA the college is making complimentary tickets available to handicapped persons and senior citizens.

For more information call Madonna College, 36600 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia.

Northville accredited

Northville State Hospital has been granted a one-year accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH).

The one-year accreditation indicates that some specific areas of the hospital's operation deserve special attention before the next JCAH survey.

Donald C. Smith, M.D., acting director of the State Department of Mental Health, points out accreditation is granted only to facilities which are in substantial compliance with JCAH standards.

Northville, with a current patient population of about 700, serves persons from Wayne County. Its superintendent is Dr. Richard Budd.

JCAH is the national standard-setting and accreditation organization for general hospitals, extended care facilities, psychiatric facilities and residential facilities for the mentally retarded.

Its accreditation is normally a prerequisite for participation in financial reimbursement programs such as Medicaid, Medicare and private third-party insurance programs.

Accreditation is also important for agencies sponsoring professional training programs. Northville operates a recognized residency training program for physicians spcializing in psychiatry.

'Zorba' auditioning

Open auditions for the musical "Zorba" will be Feb. 11, 12, and 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Osborn Center, Lois and Osborn streets, Dearborn.

The director is Craig Reynolds. Singers, dancers and stage technicians as well as two bouzouki players and a green parrot who can learn cues are needed, Reynolds said.

"Zorba" is the last in the 10th anniversary season of four musicals by the Dearborn Civic Theater. Production dates are April 19, 20, 25, 26 and 27 in Dearborn High School.

The Stroller

A truly unforgettable day

By W. W. EDGAR

It was a rather strange coincidence that The Stroller, on the 51st anniversary of his arrival in Detroit, should be asked if there was any one day in his career that stood out above all others.

There sure was. It was the day of his arrival—Feb. 3, 1924 — and the memories of that day will live on, for never before had The Stroller seen so much of life in a mere 24 hours.

It all started on that dreary, rainy afternoon when he reported to the Detroit Free Press, then located in what is now the Transportation Building, and was greeted by the famed poet Edgar A. Guest, and was escorted to the sports department.

THIS, IN itself was quite a treat to be escorted to a new job by a famous personality, but the first surprise came when he was introduced a staff of seven sports writers: Back home, he had been the only member of what was called the sports staff.

WITH THE TENSION of trying to make good on a new bob 800 miles from home, the first real shock came in the first few hours in the race to put out a morning paper in the early evening.

It came when The Stroller turned in his first piece of copy and had it rejedcted with a big, blue pencil mark. He tried again with the same result. A big lump came up in his throat when the piece was rejected for the third time. There were visions of the long ride back home and the indignity of being a failure.

Never had this happened to him before as his old editor, used to correct his copy and then tell him what was wrong with it.

With a quiver in his voice, The Stroller asked his new editor what was wrong with the copy. "I have written it three times and I can't think of another way to word it."

" You are using a colloquialism." he said, " and we don't permit its use here."

Back home where The Stroller cut his eye teeth in journalism he never had heard of the word and it stumped him now. Fortunately, he noticed what appeared to be a friendly face at the water fountain the hall.

"The boss tells me I am using a colloquialism," The Stroller confided, "and I don't know what he means." His new found friend smiled. "Just take out the slang expression and you will be all right."

WHAT A LIFE SAVER that was. The slang word was eliminated and all was serene until the final edition came off the press.

"Would you like to join us in a midnight lunch?" The Stroller was asked, and he went with the group to King Wah Lo's restaurant.

Never having been in a Chinese restaurant, he asked what was a suitable dish.

"Order chow mein," a fellow employe advised. "It's just like your sauer kraut."

The Stroller almost choked on it and was looking for an out when someone asked the black waiter what part of China he came from and the fun started. We finally were asked to leave.

We went to meet a fellow named Harold Allen, a top bowling official and enjoy a beef sandwich. It was The Stroller's first visit to a "blind pig."

Later we went to the Ash-Trumbull Club, another all night spot operated by Carl Rosenfeld, now the owner of Carl's Bar, and still a famous eating place.

Enticed into a game of Indian dice, The Stroller finally was matched against his boss. What's more he beat him by rolling five 'sixes' in one toss of the dice.

WITH THAT, THE BOSS picked up the leather box, threw it at The Stroller and hit him on the mouth, inflicting a wound that needed stitching.

Can you beat that for one day—learning about colloquialisms, being asked to leave a Chinese restaurant, visting a blind pig for the first time and getting hit on the mouth with a dice cup—by your new boss.?

No wonder The Stroller never will forget Feb. 3, 1924. It was the wildest day of a very enjoyable career.

New arrivals at the library

Lester R. Brown, "By Bread Alone." Lester Brown and Erik Eckholm present a telling argument for acting now to help stem the deepening crisis by limiting demand, through population control and a change in the diet of the affluent minority, and by augmenting supply, particularly through improving the productivity of farmlands in the less developed countries. They underscore the need for a worldwide approach to solution of the problem, for the possible results of a critical shortage of food—from runaway inflation and international competition to global war and death by starvation—will affect the lives of all nations and all people.

Ben East, "The Ben East Hunting Book." This book contains the abundant hunting wisdom acquired by the author during a lifetime of dedication to the sport. Here are 22 chapters on the techniques and guns for taking North America's major game animals and birds, all dramatized by splendid full-color photos.

Here is the lore he has absorbed from the great hunters with whom he has stalked and stillhunted. Included, too, is an up-to-date evaluation of the status of each game species, the management methods in force today to protect it, and the prospects for hunting it now and in the future.

Rex Harrison, "Rex: An Autobiography." What have Professor Higgins, Henry VIII, Julius Caesar and Don Quixote in common? All were interpreted for stage or screen by the author, and he has awards to attest to the excellence of his portrayal.

Harrison includes in his autobiography a discussion of the differences between stage and film acting techniques, and, of course, fascinating stories of some of the great stars with whom he has shared the stage.

Susanna Juliusburger, "Beginnings." Writing as a way to put off doing school assignments has produced this seventeen-year-old author's first novel. The scene is London. The wanderings of the author and her brother with a young Cockney lad lead to a series of marvelous escapades in the historic city.

Fall fair popular in Plymouth at turn of century

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT
by
Sam Hudson

(PART I)

An entry in Mamie Conner's journal tells us what many of the residents of Plymouth were doing on Sept. 25, 1890. On that day, Miss Conner, Eva Leach, Bert Roe and Ed Bennett were enjoying themselves at the Plymouth Fairgrounds. They had their picture taken, rode the merry-go-round and attended the book auction.

From their seats in the grandstand they watched the sulky races and saw the huge balloon, with the balloonist dangling from the trapeze, ascend from the space inside the half-mile track.

Later they ate at the "Presbyterian Eating House," one of several eating places at the Fairgrounds conducted by local church groups. Staffed by volunteer church members, the eating pavillions were located inside the high board fence that enclosed the grounds along Ann Arbor Street.

On the day following their visit to the Fair, Mamie and her friends took their turns waiting on tables at the Presbyterian concession.

The Plymouth Fair differed from many fairs that sprang up throughout the United States prior to the Civil War. Most were of the county fair variety sponsored by agricultural associations formed for that purpose. The Plymouth Fair was owned and operated by a locally-owned stock company.

The Plymouth Fair Association was organized in April 1886. The first fair was held in September of that year. The company was capitalized at $1,200. T. C. Sherwood was president, L. C. Hough, treasurer, and Dr. I. M. Collins, secretary. Sherwood was president of the Plymouth National Bank. Hough was treasurer and general manager of the Plymouth Iron Windmill Company (later to be named Daisy Manufacturing Company).

The purpose of the association was stated in a brochure distributed in 1895. Addressed to patrons and friends, the literature said, "This Association was not organized to make money but to encourage agriculture and art and to provide a week's enjoyment for the people of Plymouth and the surrounding country....We ask every farmer to contribute something for the success of the Fair.

"Let other farmers see what you raise and by so doing stimulate them to greater care in selecting stock, seeds and vegetables which contribute to the farmer's success....

"Let the wives and daughters of farmers, mechanics and tradesmen bring the product of their ingenuity and skill....We have the best location, finest grounds and buildings of any County Fair Association in the State, and with the hearty cooperation of citizens of Plymouth and surrounding townships, we will have the very best Fair in the State this year."

The fairgrounds consisted of 22 acres located southwest of the Ann Arbor Trail railroad crossing. It was bounded on the north by Ann Arbor Trail and on the west by Depot (Hamilton) Street. In 1890, the total value of grounds and buildings was $7,000. A high board fence enclosed most of the grounds.

Fair days ranked in importance right after Christmas and the Fourth of July. The Fair was open four days – Tuesday through Friday – each September. The grounds were closed at 6 p.m. Electric lights did not come to Plymouth until 1902.

The main entrance to the Fair was on Ann Arbor Trail. There was a secondary entrance, "The back gate," at the dead end of Bowery (now Maple) Street, where it crossed Hamilton. It was through this entrance that live stock and race horses were driven.

A family admission ticket to the Fair cost $1. Single tickets were 25 cents and children under 15 were admitted for 15 cents.

An open-air bandstand was located between the main entrance and Floral Hall. From the time of the Civil War to sometime after the Fair closed for the last time in 1903, Plymouth had its own brass band, staffed by musically-inclined adult males of the community. The band entertained at the races and at the ball games.

Floral Hall, the most imposing building on the fairgrounds, was a wooden structure with four wings radiating from a central octagonal core. At the middle of the octagon was a platform on which Grinnell Brothers music house of Detroit displayed pianos and other musical instruments. Grinnell's hired Maude Markham, daughter of the local air rifle manufacturer, to demonstrate their pianos.

The late Karl Starkweather, whose recollections form the basis of some of this chapter in the history of Plymouth, recalled that "Miss Markham's style was most spectacular. To watch her as she performed was almost as exciting as listening to her rapturous music. Maude's quickly-moving arms would fly higher than her head as she pounded the keys."

When not graced by Miss Markham, the octagonal platform was used to display pumpkins, squash, corn and other locally grown fruits and vegetables.

The core of Floral Hall, higher than the four wings, had a walk-around balcony. Hung over the balcony were rugs and drapes displayed by local and Detroit merchants.

Each of the wings contained booths which participating merchants rented from the Fair management. (One is reminded of the street booths used in today's Plymouth Fall Festival.)

The wings were also provided with shelves for the exhibition of home-baked breads and pastries, marmalade, jams, jellies, canned fruits and vegetables. One wing contained potted plants and cut flowers, presumably the reason the building was called Floral Hall.

(Part II will tell about the horse races, the balloon ascensions and children's day at the Plymouth Fair.)

Resident reelected to union office

PLYMOUTH—For the third time in eight years, Larry Wotaszak has been elected as general chairman of the United Transportation Union, General Committee of Adjustment, Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Line North.

In his position, Wotaszak maintains a full time office in the city and continues to represent 10 locals and 1,900 railway conductors, brakemen, and yardmen.

He began his railroad career at Ludington as a yardman in 1955 and has been a member of the UTU since that time. He served first as a vice president and later as president of the Ludington Local.

Wotaszak and his family reside at 1408 Sheridan.

Paramedic advisory council is organized

With an eye toward providing better emergency medical services (EMS) than Detroit, Wayne County has established a new Medical Services Advisory Council

The council was established Jan. 31 under guidelines of the Comprehensive Health Planning Council (CHPC), a congressionally authorized health care agency which developes programs over wide areas.

Under CHPC guidance, the council may qualify for up to 75 per cent federal funding and also will decide whether the revenue will be administered by the county or by various local communities.

In Wayne County, the major goals of the council will be:

- Establishing organizational responsibilities in a comprehensive EMS program.
- Adopting improved EMS technology.
- Increasing the skill of emergency care personnel.
- Implementing EMS programs statewide.

The director of the County Department of Health Dr. Perry Stearns said, "We want to see a high quality of EMS service across the county." He added:

"Our objective is better coordination and an increase in service of what is now basically (outside Detroit) an ambulance service."

"The next step," he continued, "is to develop plans for improvement, realizing that we have a lot of learning before us and a lot of problems to solve."

COUNTY BOARD Chairman Roscoe L. Bobo assured the council that its efforts would "surely save thousands of lives."

"I would like to see a countywide EMS system that is even more effective than the one operating in Detroit."

He emphasized he does not consider the Detroit system ineffective, but believes that "it does not have enough units to adequately cover the territory and population it must serve."

Bobo applauded the prospect of substantial federal because some smaller communities, with far less local income, may be in even more need than urban areas.

HE SAID he visualizes "a very, very grave need, especially in rural areas of the county where a person in distress could wait two hours or more for proper attention.

"Hospitals are a long ways away in some of these areas," he said.

Bobo, who will approve all appointments to the new council, said officers for the group will be elected at the next meeting.

Civitans honor Rev. Routledge

By MARGARET MILLER

The Rev. G. Douglas Routledge, pastor of Plymouth's Calvary Baptist Church, conducts a twice-daily radio program of inspiration from his office in the church at 43065 Joy Road.

His church also is the center for an active senior citizen program, and there are weekly gatherings of school-aged youngsters and a new day care center for toddlers.

And Rev. Routledge and four other members of the Calvary staff are trained and willing to give counseling service to any in the community who need it.

IT'S THAT KIND of involvement that has led the Plymouth Community Civitan Club to choose Rev. Routledge for special honors as it joins other Civitan groups around the country in the annual observance of International Clergy Week.

His recognition will come Thursday, Feb. 13 when he joins Civitan members and other Plymouth clergymen at a 6:30 p.m. dinner in the Miles Standish room of the Mayflower Hotel.

The traditional clergy week is part of the Civitan program in February because it was on Feb. 3, 1943, that four chaplains aboard the U.S. troop transport Dorchester gave away their life jackets to soldiers and then went down with the sinking ship.

"IN REMEMBERING their heroism, Civitan sets aside a week to honor all clergymen for their service all year," said Mike Daily, current president of Plymouth Civitan.

"And, because community is part of our name, we try to pay special tribute to a pastor whose service reaches outside his own congregation to others in the area. We feel Rev. Routledge is that kind of clergyman."

Fifteen other clergy leaders have been invited to attend the dinner at the Mayflower.

REV. ROUTLEDGE said community involvement has been a major concern of his ministry since he took over leadership of Calvary more than two years ago.

"We want it known that our programs are for everyone," he said. "We have fine facilities at Calvary for large group meetings, and we have many denominations represented in the groups of senior citizens that meet here and the Christian Service Brigade and Pioneer Girls groups."

Also open to all is the church-sponsored nursery that began five months ago and now is running three mornings a week.

Counseling, too, is available to any who ask, and many requests come from persons not affiliated with Calvary.

REV. ROUTLEDGE'S radio broadcasts are at 5:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. over station WMUZ, 103.5 on the FM band, every day.

The programs involve "Music and Musings," the theme of the show. "It's church sponsored, but we try to make it Bible-centered rather than denominational," the Baptist minister added.

Most of the morning broadcasts are taped, but occasionally Rev. Routledge is behind his microphone at that early hour too.

"I think it's good for people who have to be up so early to know there's someone talking to them 'live'," he said.

THE COMMUNITY OUTREACH, the pastor said, has had its effect on his own congregation too.

"Our Sunday morning attendance has shown a 100 per cent increase in the last too years," he said, "and contributionshave been more than a quarter million in that time."

Mini-courses Sunday school innovation

BY MARGARET MILLER

They're a bit different from the traditional Sunday School classes you may remember, these mini-courses you find in session at 10 a.m. on winter Sundays in the Pilgrim United Church of Christ in Livonia.

Four six-week courses currently are in session each Sunday before morning worship in the Meetinghouse Pilgrim UCC shares with Livonia Christian Church at 36075 W. Seven Mile.

Each has up to 12 participants, including an "enabler." "We deliberately avoid the term teacher or leader," explained the Rev. James W. Schaefer, minister of the church. "We want to get across the idea that everyone is participating."

SO, IN THE CURRENT session, you would find if you visited the Meetinghouse, one group of high school students and adults exploring the dynamics of racial relations and injustices with Clifford Schrupp, director of the Northwest Inter-Faith Center for Racial Justice.

"Cliff is the first outsider we've had as enabler," Rev. Schaefer said, referring to nearly two years of mini-course activity at Pilgrim.

In another room this session, Rev. Schaefer is leading a "creative expressions" group open to all ages.

"We make something," he said of this group. "We will be discussing faith and its expression in collage, bas-relief and montage, each making an artistic wall-hanging for the art show that ends the six-week session and to take home later."

This mini-course is the only one of the current group open to all ages, so several toddlers are joining their families in participating.

The other current courses, both for high school students and adults, involve creative writing, with Thelma Ruchhaber as enabler, and values in the market place, with Neil deStigter, who is a teacher and ordained minister.

BEFORE THE PRESENT series of mini-courses began Jan. 19, there was a session for presenting each to the congregation.

"Each enabler makes his pitch," Rev. Schaefer said, "and then we have sign-up time. We limit the number of participants in each course to 12 so that we get a mixture of ages and backgrounds."

"The signing up enables families to plan what they will be doing for the next few weeks and also gives even the small children a feeling that they are part of the group."

All the mini-courses end by 11 a.m., and then there is worship in the sanctuary and a traditionally-structured Sunday School for nursery, kindergarten and primary grades.

THE MINI-COURSE PROGRAM is in its second year and grew out of a feeling on the part of members of the congregation "that the traditional Sunday School program is not very effective and we wanted to try something different," as Rev. Schaefer put it.

At the time the first series of mini-courses began in the fall of 1973, Pilgrim had already made some changes in its church school set-up with regard to junior and senior high members of the congregation.

The church has a youth night each Tuesday, Rev. Schaefer explained. The young people come for study, including confirmation class participation, activities, youth choir rehearsal and supper.

"Then, on Sundays, they go to church with their families, or sing in the choir, or help with the younger children," the minister said. "We've been doing this for four or five years and it has worked well. We hold our kids' interest."

THUS, THE YOUNG people were in position to participate in the mini-class program when it began, and their presence gave an intergenerational aspect to the discussion groups.

Up to now, about 20 different courses have been offered in six-week segments. That gives everyone a chance to try a variety of studies and experiences.

"It's been a tremendous learning experience," said Rev. Schaefer, who in the last few months has been called on to describe the program for a number of other church groups. It's exciting to see the different themes develop, and we think we've had some good ones.

"So far, two of our high school kids have served as enablers for mini-courses."

Bible study has been part of the program in several of the terms, and often there is a sermon feedback group.

"I print the sermon each week," the minister said, "so those interested have a copy in front of them to discuss. I stay away from that one."

Nature courses are part of the program in the spring and fall, he said, and subjects like value clarification and early American music have been tried.

"The congregation did an evaluation after the first year of mini-courses," Rev. Schaefer said. "We concluded the program was a valuable one for our church family and we want to keep it as part of our program."

MARIA SCHMITZ, organist and choirmaster at Faith Lutheran Church of Livonia, will be the recitalist for the organ dedication at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church, 24931 Westwood, Dearborn, on Sunday, Feb. 9 at 4 p.m. Mrs. Schmitz, a Fellow of the American Guild of Organists, served as consultant in the purchase of the new 15-rank Casavant organ. She will play a program ranging from Bach to the contemporary Langlais.

Adult classes begin in Ward church

Six adult classes in religion have begun at Ward United Presbyterian Church, 17000 Farmington, Livonia.

Part of the school of Christian education, these classes will run simultaneously with activities for children of all ages on Wednesdays from 7-8:15 p.m.

Classes are preceded by a 6 p.m. family meal which requires reservations. Some participants attend classes only.

Dr. Bartlet L. Hess, senior pastor of the church, conducts a class called "Genesis, The Seed Plot of the Bible and History."

The Rev. L. Edward Davis, minister of parish life, leads a course to discover and develop a Biblical perspective on the life style that makes a family Christian.

"The Possible You" is the title of a course on personal potential taught by Dr. C. Eugene Mallory of the Metropolitan Guidance Center.

Elder Clarence Stacy is conducting a session on the Book of Revelation and the signs of the times.

Peg Wiedemer of the Nurses Christian Fellowship leads a seminar on "Love That Heals," designed to help Chrstians toward acts of compassion and encouragement toward the ill, the aged and widowed.

Registration for this class is limited to 30 and the cost is $20 per individual or $30 per couple.

The Rev. R. Franklin Williams, minister of evangelism at the church, and assistants will begin a class April 9. This is an eight-week intense analysis of the Christian faith and the structure, program and mission of the Ward church.

Do teachers need same powers as the UAW?

Tim Richard writes

"If the UAW can strike, we should be able to strike, too," say organized teachers.

Maybe these particular teachers have read too many Dick and Jane stories, because the differences between the auto industry and public education are vast.

And ironically, while the auto union leadership supports the Michigan Education Association on the right of teachers to strike, the general public in such school districts as Crestwood and Garden City, where UAW membership is high, strongly oppose teacher strikes.

This much is clear: Whatever the law says, teachers in fact have the ability to strike, and only a handful of union officers has ever been punished for striking. As a practical matter, it's impossible to throw hundreds or thousands of teachers into the calaboose, even if the Legislature and the courts so decreed.

THE POINT here is not whether teachers are good guys or bad buys. The point is that teachers, despite the current prohibition against their striking, actually have many advantages over the auto workers. Consider:

1. The car buyer is free to shop between four major American auto producers and a number of foreign brands. A parent has much less opportunity to shop around; either he sends his kids to the public school or picks a church- related school—if he can afford it and if it's still in operation.

2. The UAW member loses paychecks the instant he goes on strike and never recovers them. Teachers can strike for several weeks before they begin losing those 180 classroom days required by state law.

3. An employer can move out of town or go out of business—ask folks in Plymouth who used to work for Daisy Manufacturing or the people in South Bend who used to work for Studebaker. The school district has no such option.

4. If the UAW has ever elected anyone to the board of directors of GM, Ford, Chrysler or AMC, I haven't heard about it. Teachers, however, have been very effective in electing friendly candidates—and even their own members—to school boards.

5. Mass firing, possible (though rarely used) in industry, is impossible in school districts, as the Crestwood case showed. Teachers have that tenure law protecting them.

The lesson for public policy makers is that it's impossible to apply the ground rules of private industry to school districts. The right of teachers to strike may have to be modified.

BINDING ARBITRATION is also no cure-all, as many think. On this point, State Sen. Carl Pursell had some interesting thoughts in a recent speech:

"Historically, binding arbitration is done by a person who walks into a district, makes a cursory study, then walks away and bears no responsibility for implementing the decision.

"I recommend that if we have to come to binding arbitration, a three-member panel be picked from within the school district," Pursell said.

"People seem to think that in times of trouble, the Legislature can be a cure-all. Well, if you have unreasonable people, you're not going to have a contract. . .Both the board and the teachers in Crestwood have been somewhat unreasonable at times."

I couldn't agree more that good people and smart bargaining—not laws—are the key to getting school contracts written without strikes.

One thing the Legislature should avoid, as it rewrites our school bargaining laws, is a situation where only teachers or their union leaders would get thrown in the pokey if there's a strike. If teachers' unionists are going to be jailed for leading a strike, then we ought to have a method of jailing school board members, too, when they get too pig-headed. What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, as McGuffey might say.

Welfare ruins families, kills incentive to work

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

Martha Griffiths served so many of these suburban communities as their representative in Congress, in so many ways and for so many years, that it's a little difficult to bend the mind around the fact that she retired at the end of last year.

To steal a line, she's alive and well and living in Farmington, keeping active with speaking engagements and visiting old friends. Rumor has it that she will soon join the faculty of a well-known local educational institution, which would be great for her students and good for this area.

And the good works she accomplished as a member of Congress keep on rolling along. Of particular interest in these days of recession and unemployment is the three-year study of our nation's welfare system which Mrs. Griffiths chaired.

The subcommittee's recommendations were released some time ago; coupled with last week's news of Gov. Milliken's intention to do something about Michigan's own problem of welfare abuse, they constitute an important item for any agenda of politics for the coming year.

TODAY, the subcommittee concluded, our welfare system is so complicated, so enmeshed in red tape, and so overlain with contradictory rules and programs that only a thorough—even radical—review is in order. Some interesting directions are suggested in the report:

• The present welfare program discourages recipients from going to work. Taking a job means losing all benefits and winding up with lower income. Under the new proposal, all aid would not stop when people on welfare take a job; payments would be cut 50 cents for each dollar earned on the job, and a series of limits would be set up for families of various sizes. The objective is to encourage people to earn their ways out of welfare dependency.

• Currently, welfare payments vary widely from state to state, causing enormous migrations of poor families from low welfare states to higher ones. The subcommittee's proposal would set national standards for welfare benefits.

• Today's Aid To Dependent Children program discriminates against poor families headed by a male householder, and thereby encourages men to leave home and break up their families. The proposal would end this discrimination.

MRS. GRIFFITHS' Subcommittee concluded that these proposals were realistic and reasonable, that their adoption would save countless billions of dollars in administrative cost, and that the result of their implementation would be much improved support for people in need.

I agree. Our welfare system is a mess today, expensive for the taxpayers and inadequate for the people in need. Congress could do us all a service by getting down to brass tacks on welfare reform before it's too late.

And when it does, it will be just one more example of how our Martha helped us all during her distinguished career.

City, suburbs sink together

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is an excerpt from a speech made Jan. 16 to the Detroit Athletic Club Beavers. The comments on regionalism which caused some consternation among local politicals are presented in their entirety so that readers may make up their own minds.

By HENRY FORD II
Chairman, Ford Motor Co.

I mentioned the theory that downtown Detroit cannot be effectively developed because it will face too much competition from major developments in such communities as Troy, Southfield and Dearborn.

I believe the truth of the matter is that what we have well under way is the modernizing and refurbishing of an entire metropolitan area. Each major development mutually supports the others and increases the attraction and viability of the community as a whole.

The failure to develop the core city equally is a drag upon the whole community, including those other developments.

Certainly, during the early period of rapid development, temporary distortions may be introduced. But on the whole, a strong development in downtown Detroit will contribute greatly to the success of the whole metropolitan region in years to come.

THE WHOLE ISSUE of metropolitan development is for many people a source of doubt, mistrust and unfounded fears. It can become a political football and cause a lot of divisiveness in a community.

There is fear in the inner city that, just as the now-dominant ethnic group—the blacks—are beginning to get some political clout and a chance to run their own institutions, the rules of the game might be changed.

There is fear that their growing power and their chance to influence national political decisions are being eroded by a flight not only of people but of wealth, investment and other resources to the suburbs. Regionalism is viewed as a stratagem to disempower the black community and leave it to stew in its own juices in a deteriorating core city.

At the same time, many suburban whites are convinced that regionalism is a means by which they would be saddled with all of Detroit's social and physical ills, its debts and the further spread of crime.

They view it also as a side-door approach to integrated housing and integrated schools throughout the metropolitan area. They want to retain full local jurisdiction over their suburban communities and complete independence to administer their own housing, schools, police and other services as they judge best. They prefer to let Detroit solve its own problems.

I DON'T BUY either side of those arguments.

When there's a hole in the boat, the people at either end are just as much in danger as those sitting right in the middle.

I believe that the only feasible solution to our present situation is to establish a sound and workable metropolitan system embracing all of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties and as much of Washtenaw and Monroe counties as would make for effective administration.

If we are to evolve a workable pattern for strengthening the whole community, the business community's commitment to central city development on a large scale is the necessary heart of that kind of planning. If we fail here, we will have to accept a full share of responsibility for the consequences.

IF DETERIORATION in the central city is not reversed and we find ourselves with a Newark or, worse, at the center of this metropolis, then the future of our Troys or Southfields or Dearborns is going to be far dimmer than the vision that created them.

So I say that the very practical and selfish interests of the so-called establishment in the well-being of the central city are generally compatible with the interests of the people of the city.

Once they understand this—and many Detroit-area leaders do—I believe that many of the fears about metropolitan development will vanish.

Collegians' use of food stamps is blow to the deserving poor

Eccentricities

by HANK HOGAN

To relieve the stress on people who are not working, the federal and state governments have three different kinds of programs to make sure that the American people have at least some food on their tables and a roof over their heads.

For older, retired people, there is social security.

For those people who are temporarily not working, there is unemployment compensation.

For those who have not worked for an extended period of time, there is the welfare system.

Because some are federal and some are state programs there is little coordination between the three.

OF THE THREE programs, the one which receives the most criticism is welfare, because Social Security is a contributory program and unemployment compensation is policed somewhat by the employer, who has to pay the tab through unemployment taxes.

As part of the welfare program, the federal government instituted selling food stamps, which allowed people with very low incomes to purchase, at a discount, stamps with a set face value. The amount of stamps was based on a market-basket concept of what a family needed to eat for a month.

The discount from the face amount of the stamps was based on how low a person's net income was after paying for housing costs.

THE PROBLEM with the food stamp program today is that the law is written so that students who are putting themselves through college, are, because of their low incomes, entitled to food stamps.

As a matter of fact, in counties where large universities reside, the college students amount to more than half of the people receiving food stamps.

Obviously, the plan was not designed to relieve the burden of parents sending their children to college. Because the food stamp plan is based on what a person earns and the gifts a student receives from his parents are not usually reported, this is a direct subsidy to college students living outside of dormitories, at the expense of the families who are without work and in desperate need of food.

THERE ARE ONLY so many dollars available for welfare.

Every dollar misspent for people who are fraudulently receiving it or receiving it unnecessarily means that there is less for the really needy.

The college students who are receiving food stamps are doing it legally because of the way the law is worded.

Congress should very promptly amend the law so the benefits for the poor and needy are not diluted by the non-needy.

Sense And Nonsense

A THREAT? — The Livonia school board recently received a letter from 25 girls at Frost Junior High School that made a strong pitch for expansion of girls athletics. The letter closed with this observation:

"Perhaps if a girl's basketball team was organized in our junior high school, fewer girls would be apt to smoke, or develop bad habits and use improper language."

Teachers ignore parents' plight

Editor:

Dolly Carter asks us taxpayers, those who provide her a salary, to understand the plight of the PEA and to understand that although her gripe is not currently with the Plymouth School District, she must inflict necessary wounds in order to accomplish a greater goal.

PEA beleives it is the underdog because of a school board's right to fire teachers who strike. Did not these same teachers trike in September? Were they fired? Did they agree to a contract which states they will not participate in any sympathy strikes? (Call it "demonstration" or whatever, it amounts to the same thing and causes damage to both sides of the issue.)

Why be the immature child who takes his ball home when the going gets a little rough? Is there not another way to play the game? Where, really, is the battlefield? Is it in full view of the children you chose to guide and teach?

READERS FORUM

Letters must be original copies and contain the signature and address of the sender.

Limit letters to 300 words.

In our difficult economic times, teaching is a very "safe job." Many of those same UAW members you say support you are out of work, standing in unemployment lines, etc.

Can you understand that I, the taxpayer, am having just as much trouble in paying my bills? That I too, am subjected to wage freezes without even cost of living increases? That I am expected and required by law to meet your demands in the form of higher taxes in order to obtain good, qualified education for my children?

As it is now, who's to say you won't continue to stage strikes if the threat of being fired is removed? Can I expect you'll honor binding arbitration if your next goals are not agreed to?

Intelligence is your pathfinder and blatant aggression your downfall. Organize your districts to propose and lobby for workable laws in Lansing where changes can be made.

Don't make me, and most of all, my children, your sacrificial offering.

KAREN AHLGREN,
Plymouth

Busing kids wastes fuel

Editor:

We are now being told we have another fuel shortage; we must either pay a higher price for gasoline or ration gas.

I wish someone would explain to me, if there is such a shortage, why federal judges are still ordering the busing of school children. If someone would multiply the number of city buses by the number of gallons of gas being used in all the cities that have been ordered to use buses to bus children across town, the gallons of gas would stagger you.

This would be one very good way to conserve fuel by reversing the orders of federal judges on unnecessary use of buses and put the schools back to where they were before forced busing.

If this was done we'd not only conserve our precious fuel, but our children might get a better education. But fuel shortages? Gas rationing? I don't believe it, or Congress or the president would put a stop to wasting fuel in this unnecessary manner.

When they do this, I'll believe in a fuel shortage.

Keith praised by educator

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity as a local suberintendent in Wayne County to commend the citizens in your area for electing William Keith to the House of Representatives. In my 15 years as a superintendent in this state, it is on a rare occasion that I have worked with such a fine individual.

Rep. Keith's foresight in his current role as chairman of the Special Task Force Committee on Public Act 379 is refreshing indeed.

I sincerely hope that the citizens in your area realize what a fine young man represents their interests in the State Legislature.

RICHARD L. HOGANCAMP, EdD
Superintendent of Schools
Allen Park

EDITOR'S NOTE: Rep. Keith (D-Garden City) represents the 33rd House District, which also includes Inkster and a small portion of Westland.

HIGHWAY HOCKEY is a burgeoning sport among young people from the communities near uncompleted I-96. The freeway is currently little more than a big ditch running along Schoolcraft Road, but rain and melted snow followed by freezing weather have turned much of it into one of the largest makeshift hockey rinks in the metropolitan area. Photographer Mitchell Booth caught Livonian Matt Srock facing off with Jim Figures of Detroit on a likely stretch of ice near Redford Township.

Thud! Rocks dumped by Belleville

By FRED DeLANO

They hung out the SRO sign at Belleville Tuesday night as Tiger basketball fans turned out en masse for their team's key Suburban Eight showdown with Plymouth Salem and delirium reigned when they got what they came for, a 66-59 victory.

Coupled with Trenton's even more surprising upset of Dearborn which was in progress at the same time, it left Plymouth and Belleville deadlocked for the Sub 8 lead at 8-2 with four league games remaining. Dearborn is only a step behind at 7-3.

Salem's Rocks, who had whipped the Tigers by 16 points at home in the fourth game of the season, had built up a 13-point lead by the early moments of the third period and appeared to be in firm control behind the great shooting of Eric Agardy and Jim Ellinghausen. Then the roof fell in.

Within 46 seconds from the time an Ellinghausen jumper from the key had given the Rocks a 39-26 bulge, three successive Belleville buckets by Mel Abraham and the Easley brothers, Walter and Dennis, had sliced it to seven.

The 6-10 Agardy, who had a season's high of 30 points for the game, popped in four more baskets in the quarter but by that time Plymouth's halftime margin of 37-26 had dwindled to five points at 49-44 before the onrushing Tigers.

The tide turned for keeps in the first three minutes of the final stanza. In that span the Tigers got two baskets from Dennis Easley and singles from Abraham and Narvell Turner against Ellinghausen's lone jumper. This put Belleville in front to stay at 52-51 amid deafening screams from Tiger rooters.

Once Belleville got the momentum the Tigers never lost it, blocking shots, forcing Rock turnovers, stealing passes and even taking the play away from the bigger Plymouth club on the boards to outscore the Rocks in the final eight minutes, 22-10.

When it was all over the hugging, kissing, dancing Tiger mob stormed on the floor and carried Coach Tom Niemi off on their shoulders. "It was the whole team, it was the whole team," Niemi, a former Livonia Franklin assistant, kept shouting.

In the quiet of the Rock dressing room the most significant statement was Coach Fred Thomann's: "We'll come back."

The defending champion Rocks, who are now 12-2 for the campaign, put on a two-man show at Belleville, whereas it was team balance that paid off for the Tigers.

Between them, Agardy and the 6-8 Ellinghausen hit on 23 of the 39 shots they took from the floor. Agardy settled for 30 points and Ellinghausen 20, giving the pair 50 of the team's 59.

But only two other Rocks scored field goals, one each for Dan Moore and Brian Wolcott, as the balance of the team outside of its two big stars went two for 17 in its shooting. Belleville, in turn, got 16 points from each of the Easleys and 15 from Abraham besides showing far greater accuracy from the free throw line—18 out of 30 to Plymouth's nine of 25.

Plymouth will be at Edsel Ford Friday night while Belleville invades Livonia Bentley. In other Sub 8 action Redford Union will be at Trenton and Allen Park faces Dearborn.

PLYMOUTH SALEM (59): Moore 1, 2-3, 4; Dillon 0, 0-3, 0; Inch 0, 0-1, 0; DenHouter 0, 2-2, 2; Ellinghausen 10, 0-4, 20; Wolcott 1, 1-6, 3; Agardy 13, 4-6, 30. Totals 25, 9-25, 59.

SPORTS

Hockey power Churchill roars over Franklin

Take heed prep hockey world.

The Churchill Chargers are for real.

Adam Mitchell's crew, which was tabbed the "Churchill Train" by Bentley coach Mike Dudley, is picking up steam and has to be gearing up for the first state hockey tourney which kicks off regional play March 3.

The Chargers remained unbeaten in the Suburban loop by crushing Southfield Lathrup, 12-5, and knocking down the Patriots of Franklin, 6-4.

Churchill is 10-0 in the league and now 13-1-1 overall after a non-league tie with Detroit Austin, 6-6. The Chargers' solo defeat came against Franklin in the Gee Tourney and that one goal setback came in four overtimes.

The man behind the "Churchill Train" is Kevin Kardos who has been shoving in more goals than the entire Bentley or Stevenson High teams.

Kardos scored five of Churchill's six goals in the 6-4 victory over Franklin and three of those came within a two minute span.

The Charger center added three scores in the Lathrup rout and three in the tie with Detroit Austin.

"Kevin is just an unbelievable player," commented Coach Mitchell. "He made more moves on Franklin's defense that were simply good hockey...He has been doing it all."

KEVIN KARDOS

Kardos now has accumulated 45 goals and 32 assists in 15 games for 77 points...an average of three goals and 2.1 assists per game.

Bentley cagers hang on to nip Edsel Ford, 81-79

Bentley picked up the pieces after two consecutive annihilations and just barely hung on in the final seconds to dump Edsel Ford, 81-79.

The Bulldog cagers were cold off a 19 point loss to Flint Central and a 29 point lashing from Plymouth Salem.

Bentley dusted off the ice cubes and got off to a 16-13 first quarter lead. John Miller's 12 points in the second quarter paced a 30 point Bulldog barrage and it was 46-33 at the half.

Edsel Ford took the third quarter, 19-18, and it was then a matter of the Bulldogs hanging on to the final buzzer.

With 38 seconds remaining, Dan Dinsmore, who had missed five of nine at the charity line, popped in two to give Bentley a four point padding.

Steve Betz cut it back to two with seconds left and the Thunderbirds quickly fouled Don Kegley who proceeded to miss at the line.

But time had run out for Edsel Ford and the Bulldogs held on to win their eighth contest against the same number of setbacks.

Bentley wound up 35 of 64 from the field for a 54 per cent and hosts Belleville Friday in Suburban Eight action.

West rolls to 12th win

Churchill surprises GC East

By JIM BRADLEY

Both Garden City high schools had close games Tuesday with so-called weaker teams...one won, the other lost.

Chris Babler's Tigers of G.C. West traveled to the "dungeon" of Taylor Kennedy, where they always struggle, and overcame a 12-point deficit in the third period to battle past the upset-minded Eagles, 59-53, in Tri-River League play.

Billy Joe Young, who was under the weather anyway, was given another jolt when his favored Panthers were ambushed by Pat Montagano's Churchill Chargers, 67-62, in non-league play.

At Taylor Kennedy, it was a 15-point third quarter by junior guard Dave Niles that single-handedly brought West from a 34-22 deficit to a 42-39 lead at the end of the period.

Niles sank 13 consecutive points for West in four minutes and 32 seconds. West managed a 14-10 lead after eight minutes, but Kennedy's Terry Fizer riddled the nets with a game high 27 points and helped the Eagles to a 27-22 halftime edge.

The host squad, which always gives West fits in Kennedy's gym, raised its lead to 34-22 early in the second half before Niles' one-man show overcame the deficit. Then in the last quarter, center Mike Susko came alive with 11 of his 17 points to preserve the win.

Niles sank 23 points for West which ran its Tri-River record to 8-2 and 12-3 overall. Brian McMahon joined teammate Fizer in double figures with 10 points.

Over at Churchill, the Chargers jumped on the Panthers from the start. They raced to a 22-10 first quarter lead, held a 36-28 advantage at halftime and increased the distance to 10 points, 55-45 after three.

East stormed back to capture the last period, 17-12, and narrowed the gap to 63-62, with 45 seconds left. The Panthers, who have won two games this season in the last seconds, looked like they might pull out another.

But they missed a shot after getting the ball and Jay Nelson made the deciding play of the game. Nelson, who led Churchill's four double-figure scorers with 17, got three of them on a crucial play with 13 seconds left.

He rebounded a missed teammate's shot, put it back up and in, and was fouled. He "put the frosting on the cake" by sinking the free throw for a 66-62 Charger lead—and the game.

Joining Nelson in twin columns were Matt Foster with 15, Tom Bay with 12 and Scott Sheppard, 10. It raised the Chargers' season mark to 5-11 while East dropped a peg to 8-6 in the nonleague affair.

Greg Emery again paced the Panther attack with 22 points on 11 buckets aided by guard Jim Peter's 13 and Ken Tomaszewski's nine.

Montagano's Chargers out-rebounded East, 30-27, and shot a healthy 50 per cent to East's 44 per cent.

J. MIKE MCMENAMIN

Schoolcraft hires 2 instructors

Schoolcraft College in Livonia has hired two new full time instructors for the winter semester — one to teach law enforcement and the other electronics.

Hired as the college's first full time law enforcement instructor is Chris Kokolakis of 578 Belton, Garden City, who has been a part-time instructor in the program since 1971. He had worked as a special agent with the FBI for 22 years.

While with the FBI, and since retiring, Kokolakis has been a police instructor for the bureau, the Wayne County Sheriff Academy and the Oakland Police Academy. He has also been a guest lecturer at various community colleges and universities throughout Michigan.

Kokolakis earned a BS in chemistry and biology from William and Mary College in Virginia. He has an MA in criminology and sociology from the University of Alabama.

J. Mike McMenamin of 11774 Wildwing, Plymouth, has joined the college's electronics faculty. He was a temporary full time instructor at Schoolcraft during the fall semester and once worked with the Bendix Corporation for 10 years, most recently with its transportation division where he worked on people mover transportation systems.

Originally from London, England, he came to the U.S. at age 18. He earned a BS in electrical engineering at the University of Michigan, and has an MS in mathematics from Adelphia University on Long Island, N.Y.

With the industrial experience he has, McMenamim believes he can relate electronic theory to the practical or applied science of electronics.

Esch urges more business involvement

It is "high time that the business community moves away from the meeting tables and conferences and becomes directly involved in providing job training for the unemployed," according to U.S. Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R-Ann Arbor).

Esch, whose 2nd District includes Livonia and Plymouth, spelled out the new role for the business community at a recent seminar of manpower experts in East Lansing.

"The basic thrust of our employment and training efforts have been totally reversed," Esch said. "Just a few years ago, most of our employment policy-making was made in Washington, D.C. Today, the Congress has given back the dollars and the crucial decisions are made at the local level.

"But city and county officials cannot do an adequate job of placement or training without the direct cooperation and assistance of the business community."

Esch, a prime mover of the recently enacted law to create more than 300,000 jobs and extend unemployment payments, outlined several steps he believe are critical to business involvement:

- Be an aggressive member of the local planning councils which have authority under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).
- Effectively bridge the vocational education programs in schools and manpower training programs by providing work for on-the-job training.
- Use business' responsibility and administrative capability to assure that the new manpower and jobs program are effectively coordinated.

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

This will be a big weekend for Joe Sacco and Al Rosenberg, of Southfield. They'll be in Boca Rotan, Fla. on Saturday for the annual meeting of the Harness Tracks of America to receive an award for owning the most outstanding aged pacing mare of 1974.

That happens to be Huff N Puff which gained its greatest fame at Wolverine Raceway where she won three races in times of less than 2:00 and established herself as the best in Michigan.

Then Huff N Puff went to New York for the races there and quickly won acclaimn with her tremendous closing speed in the stretch. She attracted the attention of the nation's racing secretaries and they selected her for the national award.

Earlier she had won the top award in Michigan as pacer of the year and was thus honored at the annual meeting of the Michigan Harness Horsemen's Association in mid-January in Lansing.

This is the first time a Michigan pacer or trotterwon such a national award. There have been occasions when a Michigan-owned was named three-year-old of the year after winning the Little Brown Jug or the Hambletonian but this was a first for an aged performer.

From the rumor mills, one hears that Hazel Park Raceway may have a change in starters this year. The rumors are current that Chuck Coon won't be back. We haven't been able to affirm or get a denial. Take it for what its worth.

From the Detroit Race Course comes word that Bert McCann has resigned as mutuels manager and has been replaced by Harvey Rice. Bert will remain as assistant but indicated he didn't care for all the pressure of the mutuels manager.

in talking with Dick Wilson, vice president and general manager of the Detroit Racing Association and Wolverine Raceway, he makes it clear that Rice is mutuels manager for the thoroughbred operation only. The Wolverine position hasn't been filled as yet.

It will be quite a switch for Harvey who for years has been one of the top negotiators for the mutuel clerks union and now finds himself on the other side with management.

Rice had participated in this year's negotiations until the appointment and immediately notified the union officers of his change in status. Now he's busy making plans for the scheduled opening of the DRA 1975 season on Feb. 21.

You can get a wager either way that the track will or will not operate without a contract.. and the two aren't that close right now.

After a successful experiment with its first free Saturday matinee last week, Northville Downs plans to repeat this Saturday and again the following week.

This week's matinee will follow the format of the opener with an eight race program starting at 2 p.m. with Michigan owned and bred trotters and pacers that haven't been able to get starts in recent weeks.

"We have to do something for these horses," says Executive Director John Carlo, " Since the $1,000 purses are from the horsemen's pot, then we feel they have a right to stage as many of these matinees as they want. Right now we have enough money ahead to have matinees the next two Saturdays."

Drawings for the matinees were held Wednesday night and there wasn't any shortage of horses.

The matinees are free admission to all. They give parents a chance to take the youngsters to the races. Concession stands will be open on the ground level of the grandstand which is glass-enclosed and heated.

When in the evening, business will be resumed as usual with the $4,500 open pace as the top featur. There's a bit of a difference this week, Spanish Mac isn't trying to extenda winning streak. He was whipped decisively last Saturday and will be trying a comeback wth Lee Sattleburg in the sulky.

Lee will be sitting in for Tom Merriman, Jr., who will be in Florida over the weekend testing a new horse owner Bob Kalish bought while on a recent vacation.

The pacer, Roberman , has won two in a row with Don Hall driving and Tom will have to go quite a bit to improve on that.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

So you want to eat fresh fresh vegetables from your garden in January?

Then consider raising some turnips, parsnips, salsify (vegetable oysters), and carrots (mulched). Those items are hardy and can take quite a bit of winter cold.

Carrots can be left in the ground all fall and winter, if mulched with leaves. In fact, the ground is the best place to keep carrots if you like them nice and sweet. They need some protection for those who live in a cold area.

If you want a real good Brussels sprouts try the Jade Cross. Seed sown in June will produce sprouts by October. Or if you set out plants you can get a crop earlier. The plants live through the winter and by the time January rolls around you'll still have many firm, green sprouts, frozen solid, nestling under the green leaves.

These "snow sprouts" can be picked frozen and should be cooked within a few hours after picking. Or you can store them in your freezer. Being partially frozen in the garden, they tend to get soft and spoil if kept long above freezing.

PARSNIPS can be left in the garden for winter eating. The ground freezes but if you mulch them with straw, they'll be easy to dig out. Or you can dig them up and store them in earth in a cold cellar. Freezing in the soil improves the flavor.

Salsify or vegetable oysters can also be left in the ground over winter and mulched with straw. Or you can dig them in the fall, trim the tops at least one inch above the root, and store in moist soil or sand-peat in the cool cellar.

Turnips (we like Just Right, maturing in 35 days) mulched with straw or leaves are great for eating in winter. Just Right grows to the size of a golf ball. It must be sown or grown in the fall only as it produces seed stalks if sown or planted early.

Do you have any other "winter vegetables" to add to the list?

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "We planted seed in potting soil bought from a store and nothing came up. We used it for house plants and they didn't fare too well. What are we doing that's wrong?"

Answer: Some of the potting soils you buy are just ordinary peat or muck, an attractive black humus, not good for seed sowing or growing house plants. Try to doctor up the stuff by adding some sand and perlite to it.

What's cooking in Michigan

If you're thinking of more economical dishes, think onions.

Pricewise, onions have been one of the few staple foods on the marketplace in recent months, according to marketing officials of the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

Michigan ranks fifth nationally in onion production. Most of the crop is grown in late summer, stored after harvest and shipped to the rest of the country and Europe in winter. Largest commercial crops are grown in Allegan, Ottawa and Newago,counties.

Onions are perhaps most popular used as a condiment to add vigor and flavor to main dishes. But for a thrifty, savory dish try using them as a main vegetable.

Think of onions as an accompaniment to roast beef. Whole onions can be cooked in boiling water for 15 to 20 minutes, depending on size.

For creamed onions, simply add a white sauce, or top with buttered crumbs and grated cheese for scalloped onions.

For a tempting casserole treat, cook three cups of small onions in salted water for 10 minutes. Drain and put them in a baking dish. Mix together ⅛ cup honey, ½ cup catsup and 1½ tablespoons butter. Pour over the onions and bake in a 350 degree oven, basting occasionally. Uncover during the last 15 minutes if too juicy. Recipe serves six.

Like green onions? Try mixing one tablespoon, chopped, with half a cup of soft butter. Form into a roll and chill. Slice into thin circles to serve on canapes, cutlets, steaks and baked potatoes.

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

Fred Vitali, one of the sharpshooters on the Stroh team who played a leading role in the Westland Bowl Classic for several seasons, is firmly convinced now that the defending champion is jinxed in the Masters Tournament sponsored by the Greater Detroit Bowling Association.

He found it out the hard way last weekend in Behmar Lanes when he put the title on the line and could finish no better than seventh place. While he was faltering Pat Ianucci took the crown with a victory over Ted Bakatelos in the final.

Vitali's downfall kept intact the tradition that no champion has successfully defended the title since the inception of the event a decade ago.

There seems to be no stopping Cora Fiebig, the area's top average woman bowler.

Bowling in the Bowlerettes League last Monday night she established two season records. The first came with a high single of 290 and then the high series of 713.

With this performance she became the second woman to break the 700 barrier this season. Last October Bonnie Barnes fashioned a 702 series and it stood up until Cora blasted past it Monday night to boost her mean average well above the 190.8 she had at the start of the session.

THREE OTHER PINMEN broke the 700 barrier during the week.

Jim Shaffer turned the trick in Mayflower Lanes when he linked games of 236, 245 and 226 for a 707.

The second new member of the club is Bill Engstrom, who fired a 737 series in the Senior House League in Bel-Aire Lanes in Farmington.

The third was a real surprise when Jeff Peck, making his first appearance in the Westland Classic finished with a 247 after games of 225 and 228 for an even 700.

THE 700 SHOOTERS had a big edge on their rivals in all leagues.

In the senior house in Bel-Aire the closest anyone came to Engstrom was Alex Martin who had a 680 while Bill Cooper landed third place with 668.

Jim Shaeffer was away ahead of his rivals in Mayflower and Peck's runner-up in Westland Bowl was Jim Sheffield with 634 and Don Childers finished with a 245 to land third place with 619.

THERE WAS A CLOSE battle for honors in the St. John Biscoe League at Garden Lanes where Al Crosby showed the way with a 637 to earn a five pin margin over Jerry Fisher and Al Quint landed third with a 607.

The BOWLERS FINALLY found the range in Country Lanes and James Roane set a new high single of 278 to post a 687 series. Joining him for honors was Bill Olkowski, a 125 average bowler, who fired a 518 series that included a 228 game which is 103 pins above his average.

Meanwhile Rosemary Dobson took some of the spotlight by converting the "impossible" 4-6-7-10 split.

The GIRLS HAD a great time of it at in Mayflower Lanes. The high scorers included Alma Mohar with a 557, Carol Wesycott with 532 and Dianne Richardson with 525.

The conversion club added two new members as Barbara Riteracki toppled the 2-4-7-10 and Pat Collier did the same with the 5-6-10

DOUBLE CENTURY FIGURES were the order of the day in Bel-Aire.

While Bill Engstrom was fashioning his 737 in the Senior House League, John Lennon had a 673 to pace the Businessmen's circuit and Jay Robinson showed the way in the Classic with a 688. Right behind him came Stan Wilkins with 687 and Jack Brown finished in third place with 659.

A NEW NAME POPPED up in the Farmington Noon Classic when Darlene Marrow came in with a 234 in 619. In the Meadowbrook Mixed League Georgie Edwards registered a 241 in 634 to join the season's leaders.

INER SANTII furnished the top scoring in the Guys and Dolls in Plymouth Bowl with a 684 series that came on games of 226,251 and 207.

LOIS MERRIMAN rolled her way to top honors in the Livonia Ladies Classic with a 552-72-624 series that included a high single of 195-24-219. In the other singles Gerry Zande won the first game with 190-39-229 and Dee Briggs took the third with 199-33-224.

ONE OF THE highest triplicates of the season was posted in Drakeshire Lanes, Farmington, when Charles Coram, a 171 average bowler, rolled identical counts of 204.

Sharing honors with him, Mary Gaugeon posted a 265 in 581 for a new high in the women's division.

UNLESS SHE FALLS into a terrible slump over the rest of the way Cora Fiebig seems certain to be crowned the area's top average women bowler when the league season closes.

At the moment she is carrying a 190.8 mean average made possible with a 191.45 in the Ladies Major League and 190.30 in the Bowlerettes.

Along with her other honors she will make a bid to retain the state team title when her group goes to Lansing next month. Last year she won the crown with a team composed of the sixth member of other combinations.

SHARON ECKERT turned in one of the best performances of the week at Garden Lanes by putting together games of 226, 175 a and 184 for a 585. It was outstanding because her average is 153.

One of the closest finishes of the year came in the St. Linus mixed league where only 12 pins separated the top three places. John Dudek set the pace with a 613 and Al Bjorek tied with Cass Treal for second place at 601.

Franklin nips Farmington

Sam Williams sank a five footer with just five seconds left to give Livonia Franklin a 56-54 victory over Farmington High in a nonleague basketball game last Tuesday.

Farmington had rallied from a 49-38 deficit after three quarters and outscored the Patriots, 16-9, in the final quarter. With time running out, Farmington took the lead, 54-52. But then Dan Pederson made both ends of a one-and-one situation with 30 seconds left to pull Franklin into a tie. A Falcon turnover gave Franklin the ball and set the stage for Williams' heroics.

Pederson, a 6-0 guard, led all scorers with 16 points. Joe Pollard followed with 14 points, and Williams had 10.

Senior forward Mitch Thomas led Farmington with 15 points. Dave Tyler faced the Falcons' comeback with six points in the fourth quarter and 13 for the night. Randy Meier added 14 points for the losers.

Farmington held a 41-24 rebounding edge. Thomas and Brian Steusloff grabbed 11 and 10 rebounds respectively for the Falcons. Dennis Wesley, a 6-4 center, grabbed six rebounds for Franklin.

Farmington, now 4-12, plays next at Pontiac Northern on Friday (Feb. 7). Franklin, now 3-11, entertains Garden City East on Friday. Both games start at 8 p.m.

Vikings rout Fraser

Thanks to a five goal explosion in the final period, the Livonia Vikings mauled Fraser, 9-3, to remain on top of the Michigan Junior B hockey loop.

The Livonia club, which hosts cellar dweller Westland this Saturday (Feb. 11) in Ford Rink at 8 p.m., is one point ahead of Ecorse Big D.

Livonia sports a 27 win, three loss and one tie mark for 55 points with Ecorse next at 26-3-2 for 54 points. The Westland Jay crew is in the nine team basement at 1-30-0 for two points.

The Vikings also boast the No. 1 and 2 scorers of the Junior circuit in Grant Judd and Dan Lerg. Judd has 36 goals and 35 assists for 71 points and Lerg, 28 goals and 41 assists for 69 points.

The Vikings are second place only in the goal tending slot. Ecorse has the top two netminders in Doug Ross and Paul Spencer with a 2.47 and 2.62 goals against mark. Livonia's Rudy Varari and John Steggles are next best at 3.12 and 3.78 respectively.

OUT OF THE PAST-old wooden wheels.

No rebates offered by this auto dealer

By W.W. EDGAR

PLYMOUTH — In this day and age when the major automobile companies are offering cash bonuses as a lure to purchase new compact cars it is surprising to learn that there is a car in Plymouth with a price tag of $60,000– and no bonus-- and no particular desire to sell it.

It is a most unusual car in that it is the only one of its kind left in the world. It is a 1936 Lancia, a handmade Italian car, and is one of the most coveted creations by all the antique car buffs in the land.

"There were two, so far as I know," David Geddes, owner of the Antique Motor Car Co. on Main Street, said, "and the other has been lost in antiquity."

It is a fascinating car with high rounded fenders, running boards and large wheels that show the dedicated hand work of the builders.

THIS "LONE WOLF" is the pride of the antique company that opened its doors only four months ago and enabled Geddes to realize a long cherished dream.

He long had voiced a desire to spend the most of his waking minutes in the restoration of old cars.

When he entered business with the revamping of the body shop that was part of the old Allison Chevrolet dealership, Dave became the third in the area to devote full attention to bringing new life to old, and almost forgotten cars that once were the pride of the elite.

The others in the area included Hatton Enterprises in Garden City and Classic Automotive Repair in Farmington-- each of which caters to the growing interest in glorifying the old time machines that traveled the highways before the rush of the modern models.

Walking along the line at the Geddes plant is like strolling through the pages of history. On all sides are such famed names of long ago as the Packard, a Detroit built car, that in its time was the most prestigous of all cars.

ALONG THE LINE you'll find a "Flint" model- a car that is almost forgotten even by the old timers. With it the line runs the gamut back to the days of Henry Ford's Model T that went a long way in putting the world on wheels.

Dave smiles as he recalls that the Model T was found in Fred Hill's garage, and that he had to teach the owner of the John Smith Clothes shop to run it before bringing it in for work.

Many of the models brought in for rejuvenation are from the Rolls-Royce line, the most highly respected cars in Europe for the past few decades.

One of the most striking is a car from Pennsylvania and Geddes is proud of the manner in which he received the contract to restore it.

"I received a phone call one afternoon," he says, "and the man on the other end told me he had heard about our shop and was I able to take the job. I assured him I was and here is the car with several more to follow.

"How he got to know about us, I don't know," Dave said, "but it must have been by word of mouth as the antique buffs pass the word along."

Walking along the line you'll find a P-3 Rolls Royce, a 12 cylinder job worth $44,000; a 1936 Straight Eight Packard, one of the last made by the firm once located on East Grand Boulevard; a 1929 Model A Ford with the small motor and others that bring back memories of such things as the rumble seat (once known as the mother-in-law seat) and the old type phaeton.

THERE ARE MODELS that recall the days when the passengers wore goggles and dusters, and the cars were equipped with honking horns on the front door and had high wooden wheels.

Restoring antique cars is an unusual business, according to Geddes, as no estimated price can be given before a job is started-- and the work runs into real money.

"We document every job," Geddes confided. "We keep a daily record of the hours we put in and the material we use.

"Then we report our progress to the owner and the cost to that point. In this way no one is ever surprised at the cost of the finished job."

The one thing that is surprising to Geddes is the fact that he has run out of space in the four short months he has been in business.

"I knew that there was a great deal of interest in antique cars," he said. "But I didn't think I'd have a staff of 11 employes and that I'd be moaning about the lack of space so quickly."

It surely is a dream come true.

'Orient Express' is complex, exciting

By SUE ROSIEK

Agatha Christie fans will spend a delicious two hours watching her well-known character, detective Hercule Poirot, piece together the elaborate and tantalizing elements that shape "Murder on the Orient Express."

The plump, slick-haired, mustachioed Poirot is played by Albert Finney. Poirot is Christie's super sleuth, who has an uncanny knack for untangling mysteries.

THE MOVIE begins with a newspaper headline sequence that describes an American kidnap-murder in the '30s. At first the segment seems unrelated to the rest of the plot, but as the film progresses the connection becomes excitingly apparent.

The movie picks up the action five years later as a diverse and fascinating group of people are boarding the Orient Express, for a three-day journey from Istanbul to Calais.

Poirot, the famous Belgian detective, is a last minute addition to the passenger list. He is welcomed aboard by his old friend, Bianchi (Martin Balsam), the director of the railroad line.

The dimly lit train station is the hub of activity. The lavish Pullman car and the eastern setting exude intrigue. As the trains pulls away from the station, the smoke thickens, and so does the plot.

AFTER BRIEF encounters with several passengers, Poirot retires to his berth for what turns out to be a most disturbing night's sleep.

He's periodically awakened by the ringing of bells, knocks on doors, and finally a loud moan, which is brushed off, later, as "just a nightmare."

The next morning Poirot, Bianchi and the Greek doctor (George Coulouris) discover Ratchett, the American millionaire, is dead. He was repeatedly stabbed.

Fearing what a scandal might do to his company, Bianchi enlists Poirot's help. At the same time, the train is halted because of a snowdrift blocking the tracks. The train has to wait for the snow to be cleared, which is all the time Poirot has to solve the murder.

POIROT BEGINS his race against time to solve the baffling, brutal murder. He seals off the Pullman car and begins his probe of the 12 curious personalities.

"Murder's" cast is impressive, and the acting is suberb. It's hard to select an outstanding character because they all get a chance to shine.

The passenger list includes Mrs. Hubbars (Lauren Bacall), a talkative, rich American woman; Greta Ohlsson (Ingrid Bergman), a Swedish missionary; Count Andrenyi (Michael York), a Hungarian diplomat, and his wife, Countess Andrenyi (Jacqueline Bisset); Pierre Paul Michel (Jean-Pierre Cassel), the conductor; Colonel Arbuthnot (Sean Connery), a British officer; Vanessa Redgrave as the woman in love with the colonel, and Wendy Hiller, as a Russian princess. Richard Widmark is Ratchett, the millionaire; John Gielgud is his valet, and Anthony Perkins Ratchett's secretary.

Director Sidney Lumet extracts stellar performances from each of his characters, and the result is a first-rate motion picture.

AFTER Poirot meticulously questions each of the 12 suspects he produces 12 clues. Everyone seems guilty, but everyone is innocent? The story is complex and tricky, and it's a pleasure to watch Poirot as he recounts what actually happened. His methods also are amusing.

Family concert slated

The Redford Civic Symphony will present its annual family concert Sunday, Feb. 23 at 3 p.m. in the Redford Union High School gym. The program will feature the Redford Union High School Concert Choir, under the direction of Eugene Dyer, and soloist Lynn Chambon, a senior from Thurston High School.

Miss Chambon will perform Beethoven's piano concerto No. 1. She is a student of Mischa Kottler, and was selected as a soloist in the symphony's annual auditions held last November.

The orchestra, under the direction of John Gajec, will play a variety of music by such composers as Claude Debussy, Aaron Copland, Antonin Dvorak and Frederic Chopin.

The concert, sponsored by the Redford Township Music Society, is free.

Dorsey Band at Schoolcraft

The Waterman Campus Center at Schoolcraft College will be transformed into a ballroom reminiscent of the Graystone days on Saturday, Feb. 15.

Music will be provided by the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra under the direction of trombonist Murray McEachern. The goateed McEachern resembles the famed late bandleader. He has recruited some of New York's finest musicians to play the nostalgic tunes that made the Dorsey Band popular.

Attendance is limited to 450, at tables for 10, allowing ample room for dancing the jitterbug and cheek-to-cheek. The dance is sponsored by the Cultural & Public Affairs Committee. It has arranged to have a cash bor bar for hot sandwiches and refreshments.

'Cry of the Wild' is superb wolf film

By TIM RICHARD

In the last two years, the timber wolf, villain of nursery tales, has been portrayed by biological revisionists as an endangered species whose reputation as a wanton killer is a foul libel.

The documentary films, the magazine articles and last year's "Brother of the Wind" commercial film have all said much the same thing in defense of the wolf, and one wonders what the new release, "Cry of the Wild," can possibly add.

Well, in this viewer's mind, "Cry" is the best and most professional of the wolf pictures. If you haven't seen a wolf movie yet, this is the one to see; and if you've seen them all, it's still worth your evening at the cinema.

"CRY OF THE Wild," now showing locally, has been criticized on two counts—its blood and its explicitness—so you need to be prepared.

The only way the film maker could get pictures of wolves in the wild was to shoot them as they feasted on a moose or caribou. It was also an excellent setting to illustrate the pack's caste system. It really shouldn't bother anyone who has ever cleaned a chicken or a fish, or witnessed a pet nailing a field mouse.

In a superb sequence on courtship and mating, there is one fleeting glimpse of a male mounting a female—so brief that no one will have time to snicker. Most children have seen dogs or cats or hamsters in the same posture, so the film is hardly shocking.

For these reasons, the film is rated PG (parental guidance suggested before you let the youngsters see it). A child who, for any reason, can't handle the biology should be left home. For a normal, healthy youngster—especially one who has a dog—the film is warmly recommended.

BEING OWNED by two boisterous poodles, this viewer is continually astounded by the great similarities in social behavior between dogs and wolves.

And why shouldn't they be similar? Genetically, they are the same species, capable of inter-breeding.

The film opens with some spectacular Arctic scenery, but the best segment is of five confined wolves—two tame, the others wild—in Quebec.

ESI begins scholarship in business

A new scholarship program for high school seniors interested in business careers is being sponsored locally by the Detroit Chapter of Executives' Secretaries, Inc., representing about 40 top business and professional firms in the tri-county area.

Called Business Career Development Program, the program recognizes high school seniors with outstanding leadership potential and encourages training beyond the high school level through cash awards.

Applicants will be selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, communication and business skills and evidence of career goals.

THE NATIONAL competition for cash awards in amounts up to $2,000 includes selection of a top senior enrolled in business courses in about 150 high schools in Wayne, Macomb and Oakland counties.

Senior candidates are nominated by their high schools for the local judging of entries in January. Local winners will be announced in February.

Winners selected by the Detroit chapter's judges will compete in the ESI midwest regional competition early in 1975 for prizes in amounts of $200, and become eligible to compete in final competition for the $2,000 first prize money and two $1,000 runner-up awards.

THREE FINALISTS from each of the three regional contests throughout the country will receive an all-expense trip to Hawaii for the final judging to take place at the ESI national convention in May. Winners will be accompanied by their sponsoring teachers.

The fashion board for Sears, Roebuck and Co. will also select several outfits and luggage for the winners.

The ESI Business Career Development Program is endorsed by the Association of School Principals and approved by the American Vocational Association.

RUSSELL E. NELSON of Plymouth has been promoted to group executive of the Sybron Corporation's professional equipment and dental sundries operating groups. JA builds talent for future

A bleak economy hasn't dampened the enthusiasm of more than 500 youths eagerly building their Junior Achievement (JA) companies in western Wayne County.

JA centers in Plymouth and Wayne last week opened their doors to the public in celebration of JA Week in Southeastern Michigan.

The teens and their directors, William White (Wayne Center) and Rico Bianchi (Plymouth Center), explained their commitment to building business leadership through incorporating their own companies and selecting, manufacturing and marketing their products.

At the Plymouth Center, located at 585 W. Ann Arbor Trail, 284 Achievers have formed 12 companies to produce lamps, stained glass gifts and jar openers, to name a few.

Each JA company is sponsored by an established business, whose employes give advice on good business practices. In Plymouth the sponsors include: Western Electric Co., Burroughs Corp., and Ford Motor Co.'s Sheldon Road Plant and Livonia Plant.

Clocks, zodiac wall plaques, crosses, tie tacks, bud vases, nightlights, mugs, lint brushes, safety flare kits and lamps are some of the products marketed by 245 Achievers in 11 companies at the Wayne Center, located at 3139 Wayne Road.

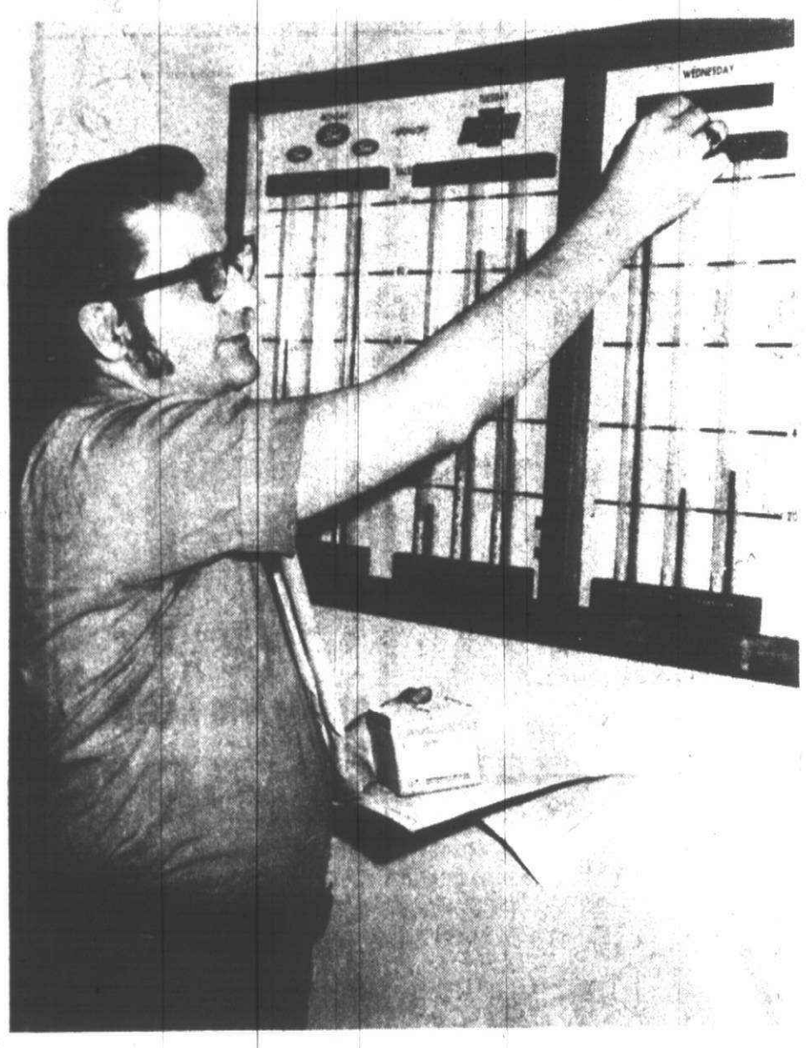
Their sponsors include: Detroit Edison; Ford Motor Co. Marketing Division, Parts Division, Wayne Assembly Plant and Glass Division; Kelsey-Hayes Co.; and General Motors Corp. Detroit Diesel Allison Division and Fleetwood Plant.

JA is open to all high school students. The companies frequently reorganize and invite new members.

Both centers are open Monday through Thursday from 7-9 p.m.

ANN WATT, 15, works on a drill press, manufacturing a game called "Tee-Off."

PLANNING plays an important part in JA work. The Salton Co. maps out its strategy for its next project under the supervision of Elmer Makins (background), JA sponsor.



SALES RECORDS of each company's progress are maintained by Rico Bianchi, director of the Plymouth Center.

MAKING A FINISHED PRODUCT, John Quinn, 14, and Thierry Dechape, 15, complete work on "Tee-Off," a game made by a JA company called "The Teamsters."

Customers back allocations

Service station owners vary on petitions

By W. W. EDGAR

If Western Wayne County motorists were to have their way, there would be no additional taxes to boost gasoline prices and no coupon rationing to meet the predicted crisis.

From all areas—Redford and Plymouth townships, Livonia, Plymouth, Garden City and Westland—come reports that motorists are willingly signing petitions at service stations to ward off proposed federal solutions to the fuel shortage.

The petitions have been distributed by the Service Station Dealers of Michigan, and Charles E. Shipley, executive director, predicts that Michigan will provide one million signatures by the time the drive ends Feb. 24.

THE PETITIONS have these choices for the motorists:

1— I am against higher gasoline prices caused by a government imposed tax.

2— I am for reducing the availability of gasoline by mandatory allocation and equitable distribution.

3— I am against coupon rationing of gasoline, except as a last resort.

Service station owners throughout the area say they have little trouble in obtaining signatures. In some cases, customers have driven in and asked for them.

The lone dissenter in the entire area is Al Barsanti, owner of the Mobil station at Five-Mile and Merriman roads in Livonia.

"I TOSSED the petitions in the wastebasket," he said. "I am not going to harrass my customers for the sake of the dealers association. What has this association ever done for me?

"I am going to let it be every man for himself. I am not going to get my customers involved. If they are for it, it's okay with me. I am in favor of the government running things as it sees fit, and I am not going to be bothered with petitions."

One of the enthusiastic supporters of the drive is Jack Bingham, owner of Bingham's Standard Station at Five-Mile and Levan in Livonia.

"I DON'T WANT any part of gasoline rationing by coupon. We have had enough of that," he remarked, "and I think gasoline should be available at any time for anyone who pays the price."

The veteran station owner pointed out that it would be terrible if a fellow had an emergency call in the wee hours of the morning, something like a death in the family, and he was out of rationing coupons.

"What could he do? That's where the inequality of coupon rationing comes in. I am in favor of the dealer allocation plan. With this, gasoline will be availaable for those who pay the price."

CUSTOMERS at Bell Creek Standard Station, at Five-Mile and Inkster at, the Redford Township line, have demonstrated their feelings in great numbers during the past week.

"We have obtained more than 400 signatures," said Ray Ducher, the station owner, "and we haven't had a bit of trouble getting them."

Mike Parker, at Mike's Ford Station in Garden City, reported that none of the customers have refused to sign, and that he obtained 25 signatures the first day. It was much the same at Byrnes station at Seven Mile and Middle Belt in Livonia, where Mike Botsick reported getting 100 signers with no trouble.

> "I tossed the petitions in the wastebasket. I am not going to harass my customers for the sake of the dealers association. What has this association ever done for me?"
> —Al Barsanti

THE OWNERS of Mert's popular station in downtown Plymouth said they had not received petitions as of Monday, but they are in favor of the drive.

At the Cherry Hill-Venoy station in Westland, Frank Payne, the manager, said that he, personally, thinks the drive is a good move, but that he is not asking his customers to sign the petition.

"I have the petitions out where they can see them. If they want to sign, it's fine. If they don't, that's up to them."

Ron Stone, manager of the AMA station in Redford, said that to date he hadn't been turned down once on the petitions, and had obtained more than 40 signatures. It was the same story at Pete's Service Station on Joy Road.

"We have one full card already," Jim Martin, the station manager said, "and there should be no trouble getting many more."

Elton McAllister, manager of McAllister's station in Northville, one of the oldest in the area, is debating whether to put the petitions on display.

"I just received them," he said, "and I want to study them first before I talk to any of our customers. I just may not want them out. Rationing was a sore spot before"

MANY DEALERS feel that those customers who didn't sign, just didn't care one way or the other. They did report that there have been few absolute turndowns.

There also was a belief in some areas that some customers feel the entire drive is a political maneuver and that there is no gasoline shortage.

More students will qualify for financial assistance

State guidelines for determining a college student's need for financial aid have been revised. As a consequence, many students from middle income families will be able to quality for help next year.

Dr. Lee Peterson of the state's Division of Student Financial Aid, recently told high school principals and counselors that the needs analysis systems for 1975-76 have been "substantially revised."

WHILE PETERSON would not answer pointed questions on what average income would qualify for financial aid, he told the counselors to have every academically qualified student, regardless of income, apply for a state scholarship or grant.

He further stated that parents throughout Michigan who have been laid off can file an adjusted confidential parents statement. Parents expecting reductions in income can utilize the projected income section of the same form to receive consideration for financial assistance. Applications with adjusted income forms will be given preferential treatment.

He also said the state Legislature will receive new bills to further ease the student's financial burdens.

One of the bills would empower the Michigan Department of Education to establish a fund from which students can obtain low-interest loans no longer available from many banks and other financial institutions.

State financial official also said bills will be introduced asking that some percentage of state financial aid monies be assigned to every high school in the state to equalize funding.

The official did not say what percentage of the total state appropriation would fall into this category, if the legislation passes.

RACHEL McCRAE of the Health, Education and Welfare Department, told told high school counselors meeting at the University of Detroit the federal Basic Grants Program currently awards $475 million to 700,000 students across the country.

The average grant is $690. The recipients are freshmen and sophomore college students only.

She said next fall an estimated one million freshmen, sophomores and juniors will qualify for $660 million and the average grant is expected to drop to $600. This year the grants range from $50 to $1,050. Next fall the ceiling will be $800.

The financial aids conference for high school counselors, held at the University of Detroit, was sponsored by the Detroit School District in cooperation with the university.

U-M professor predicts housing upturn in'75

The depressed housing market will improve in 1975, predicts a University of Michigan professor, although the cost of housing will increase.

Prof. Karl G. Pearson said: "A rebound in new housing starts will take place by mid-year, as more mortgage money becomes available and and long-term interest rates deline.

"Existing home sales will also reverse their decline. Easier credit terms will come about, with the new authorization for federal savings and loan associations to make 90 per cent of value loans up to $55,000 and 95 per cent of value loans up to $40,000.

"The amount these savings and loan associations can lend on equipment and home improvements has also been increased, from $5,000 to $10,000. The net result should be an increase in new housing starts in 1975 of about five per cent over 1974."

HOUSING will continue to cost more, because of increased land and fabor expenses, and many families will turn to rental housing, predicted Pearson, a faculty member of the U-M Graduate School of Business Administration and the university's director of real estate education.

"But," he added, "there will be no apartment house investment boom in 1975, for it will be impossible to raise rents the 30 to 35 per cent builders would require to make the buildings pay. There is also the threat of rent controls and the militancy of tenant unions, both deterring apartment investments..."

Builders will be discouraged and housing costs will increase also because of communities' no-growth policies. "Hundreds of communities throughout the country have adopted restrictions on growth. Many cities just do not want to grow any bigger...The environmental concerns at the root of these policies are not just a passing fad. They have cut down, not only on new housing construction, but on new commercial and industrial construction as well.

SINGLE FAMILY detached homes will be most in demand, Pearson says. Although most buyers still want their own plots of land, they cannot pay more than $35,000 and are willing to accept less space and fewer amenities for a price within their means,

The professor does not expect the revival in new housing starts to apply to condominium units, which "suffer from an overhang of unsold units."

New housing in 1975 will be "energy conscious" with maximum insolation, storm windows and screens and insulated windows, Pearson said. "There will be mandatory standards for energy-efficient construction, not only in housing, but also in commercial and industrial buildings. There may be investment tax credits for the installation of energy-conservation devices.. New home buyers want to know how much the devices will cut down on their utility bills."

Hospitals passed snowstorm test

Spot checks made by the Greater Detroit Area Hospital Council indicate southeastern Michigan hospitals met the emergencies created by last December's record snowstorm well.

The council report says that while nearly 30 Detroit-area deaths were storm-related, those who made it to the hospitals received full and immediate attention.

Symond R. Gottlieb, council executive director said, " During the recent storm our hospitals experienced a situation that was more of an inconvenience than a disaster. There is no question that some patients in need of care suffered delays in getting to the hospital, and some reported deaths may even have resulted from such delays. Once they reached the hospital, however, patients were taken care of."

He said hospitals have been studying better means of overcoming transportation difficulties caused by storms.

"Throughout southeastern Michigan the police, ambulance drivers, fire departments, civil defense workers, National Guard and many others responded immediately and worked without pause to get people to hospitals."

New patient admissions were down. From 25 to 30 of the doctors and hospital employees failed to make it in and as many as two- thirds in the less critical or non-direct care assignments failed to find transportation. The loads were balanced by employees who worked through two or more shifts, snatching only occassional rest periods on cots in lobbies, corridors and offices.

A man who made it to a hospital to pick up his wife, an employee, took a volunteer assignment and washed dishes. A nun who couldn't find transportation hitch-hiked to her hospital as did many of her fellow workers. Ambulances taking two women in labor to hospitals got stuck in the drifts; and the mothers-to-be were rescued by police scout cars and safely delivered to the delivery rooms.

The scores of visitors trapped in hospitals were given meals, cots and other necessities many of which they bought at the hospital gift shops. Some hospitals near snowbound expressways provided food and shelter for stranded motorists.

"Every hospital is required to have a fully developed and thoroughly tested disaster plan in order to maintain accreditation," Gottlieb said.

Medicare costs rise

Medicare's hospital insurance deductible has increased this year by $8 to $92, keeping in line with the increased average cost of one day's stay in a hospital.

"The increase to $92 for 1975 is a result of a review of hospital costs during 1973," said Stefan Gasparovic, manager of the Detroit- Northwest Social Security office.

Three other amounts Medicare patients pay for covered care also have increased as follows:

- For a hospital stay of 61 to 90 days, patient costs will increase $2 to $23 per day.
- For reserved days used, after 90 days of hospital care in a benefit period, a patient will pay $46 per day, an increase of $4.
- For a post-hospital stay from the 21st to the 100th day, patient costs will increase $1 to $11.50 per day.

Those eligible for Medicare hospital insurance, include: persons 65 and over, disabled persons under 65 who have been entitled to social security benefits for 24 consecutive months, and many persons with chronic kidney disease, a transplant or who need dialysis.

Dance forms old and new in YW classes

Folk dancing is old as man's need to express his native culture in movement; Creative Dance Styles represents a new move to bring together assorted kinds of dance.

Both are recent additions to the class program scheduled in the winter term of the Western Wayne County YWCA, 26729 Michigan, Inkster.

"Folk dancing seems to be having a big surge, but up to now it hasn't been available in this area," said Nora Nader, YW staff member who found Nicholas Michalakis of Garden City to teach that class.

"And Creative Dance Styles," she added, "is our answer to many requests for Aerobics — that's a patented Air Force exercise that has had a lot of publicity but isn't practical for many women."

Irene Price, Dearborn dance teacher, is leading that class. "It's a basic dance course," she said. "It uses the fundamental steps that are parts of all kinds of dance and exercise, and, like Aerobics, it's done to music."

MICHALAKIS, TEACHING the folk dancing group, is an Ecorse High School Spanish and English teacher who has been interested in this art form most of his life.

A native of Greece, he began learning square dancing as a teenager at Cass Technical High School in Detroit, and learned a number of ethnic dances through long association with the International Institute. "I helped dedicate the site for the Institute in 1951," he remembers.

Over the years, he's passed along his enthusiasm for folk dancing to his Japanese-born wife, Sayoko, and has taught it in a number of situations.

Students in his current classes—more registrations still are being accepted—find they not only are learning a lot of new steps but getting some insight into several different cultures.

"You get more out of this kind of dancing because you put more into it," suggested Valerie Reuter of Garden City, a Westland nursery school teacher.

THE BASIC STEPS learned in Creative Dance Styles, said Mrs. Price, can take a student on into ballet, tap, jazz, even marching or some sports.

"The basic footwork is the same for many dance styles," said this teacher who includes a variety in her private classes

This class, she added, gives a student a taste of dance instruction and a chance to decide if she wants to go on and which style she prefers.

Mrs. Nader and Mrs. Price said Aerobics requires every-day participation which many women in this area cannot manage, but CDS has many of the same advantages.

Both folk dancing and CDS classes are in session Thursday evenings. Those interested in joining them may call the Western Wayne County YWCA.

'Note of agreement' reported at Schoolcraft

BY SHERRY KAHAN

Rosina Raymond, Schoolcraft trustee, is ready to let die the fuss raised by the appointment of Mrs. Jean Christensen as head of women's programs at Schoolcraft College.

"I think it was important that members of the board of trustees discussed the appointment as well as the women's program in general," she said.

"I believe we came out of the meeting on a good note of agreement. We plan to give Mrs. Christensen time to see what she can develop. We will continue to make certain our women's program moves in a meaningful way.

"We don't expect a duplicate copy of what we had before under Nancy Dufour. But we want a continuation of the same general philosophy."

BECAUSE OF THE STIR created by two letters from members of the National Organization for Women, raising issues about the hiring of Mrs. Christensen and expressing concern about the future of women's program at Schoolcraft, Mrs. Raymond prepared a position paper to read to board members at the January meeting.

In her statement she discussed problems brought to the fore by Jeannette Shanks, president of NOW and by Sylvia Vukmirovich, chairperson of NOW's education task force.

Mrs. Shanks was concerned that strict interpretation by Schoolcraft of federal guidelines to Title IX of the Education Act would reduce the effectiveness of the activities and classes for women on campus.

Mrs. Vukmirovich complained that she had been informed by a member of the Schoolcraft administration that no woman teacher, administrator or volunteer from the college would be considered for the job later filled by Mrs. Christensen.

She also claimed that women with better qualifications than Mrs. Christensen's applied for the job. She asked the college to explain the criteria used in selecting Mrs. Christensen.

MRS. RAYMOND said that if what Mrs. Vukmirovich said was true about the college not wishing to hire its own personnel, then a disservice was done, and policy should be formulated whereby this kind of error is not repeated.

"The question arises, might there not have been some person, or persons, right on campus who had the necessary qualifications and who were interested," said Mrs. Raymond.

"If so, they should indeed have had first consideration, as should be the case in all other position openings. This is only just and equitable, making for better relations within the college community."

Mrs. Raymond said she could not agree or disagree yhat the college hired the most qualified applicant, "since I did not know who applied or the criteria used in filling the position." She added the board knows about vacancies but does not know "who the applicants are or the criteria used for hiring.

"We must rely wholly on the administration, and yet accept responsibility and criticism if anything goes awry."

IN RESPONDING to questions raised by Mrs. Shanks about possible diluting of women's programs, Mrs. Raymond referred to a meeting she attended in Lansing in September 1974 in which the strict interpretation by the Department of Health Education and Welfare of Title IX was discussed.

The title outlaws discrimination under any education program or activity receiving federal assistance.

To many, the rigid interpretation of Title by HEW changed greatly the title's original intent.

At the Lansing meeting Mrs. Raymond asked if Schoolcraft's women's programs would be affected by the initial guidelines. "The response was, in essence, that because it is a corrective program, discrimination probably would not apply," said Mrs. Raymond. "A parallel was drawn with black studies programs which are intended to be corrective and help upgrade a minority group."

Mrs. Shanks had expressed concern that courses in modern literature by and about women could be altered by the college because offederal rulings that would consider them discriminatory because men's literature was excluded.

"In the same vein, literature by and for women would apply," continued Mrs. Raymond. "It goes without saying that these are the very essence of corrective programs — engendering feelings of pride and worth in one's sex or color by making available models to emulate and, more importantly, setting history straight; eleviating injustices and inequities that most minorities such as Blacks, Indians, women and others encounter."

New federal guidelines, which are expected to be far more liberal than earlier ones, should be sent soon to the college.

DAR to honor 4 'good citizens'

Four high school seniors chosen for Daughters of the American Revolution Good Citizen awards will be honored by the DAR John Sackett chapter Saturday, Feb. 8.

The girls and their mothers will be guests at a luncheon in the home of Mrs. Clayton Nacker, 26577 W. Six Mile, Redford Township.

The four award winners, all chosen for the qualities of dependability, leadership, service and patriotism they have shown, are Sandra Flack of Clarenceville High School, Janette Arsneault of Thurston High, Madeleine Stefanko of St. Agatha High and Cecilia Wright of Bishop Borgess High.

All will receive certificates and pins denoting their honor.

MISS FLACK, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Toney Flack of Brentwood Avenue, Livonia, is top-ranked in her Clarenceville graduating class and has won a creative writing award and three scholarship awards.

Current treasurer of the National Honor Society, she also sings with the Peppermints, an extra-curricular musical group. She wants a career in writing and will enter the University of Michigan in the fall.

A prospective student at Michigan State University is Miss Arsneault, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Arsneault of Donald Avenue, Redford Township.

She is a member of the Thurston student council and the National Honor Society, takes pictures for the yearbook, writes for the school magazine and plays on volleyball and basketball teams.

Miss Arsneault also is a member of St. Valentine Catholic Church.

ST. AGATHA'S Madeleine Stefanko is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emery Stefanko of Detroit. She was elected to the NHS and has won awards for typing and shorthand. She hopes to attend the University of Michigan Dearborn and become a certified public accountant.

This winner also plays the guitar and sings regularly for Saturday masses in St. Agatha Catholic Church, and she is working with a group of elementary children to train them in singing for masses.

Miss Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick C. Wright of Detroit, is editor of the Bishop Borgess yearbook, active in student government, varsity swimming, choir and drama.

She has a scholarship to attend Eastern Michigan University, where she hopes to major in occupational therapy and minor in art.

THE JOHN SACKETT DAR also gives Good Citizen awards to senior girls in 10 high schools in northern Michigan. These are Benzonia, Crystal Falls, Negaunee, Iron Mountain, Carney, Stephenson, Powers, Menominee, Marquette and Republic.

Mrs. James Rogers, project chairman for the chapter, will present the awards. She also will be an assisting hostess, along with Mrs. William Booth, Mrs. Craig Cowell and Mrs. Ernest Lipa.

Shattered fixture leads to new career

A shattered lighting fixture in the Steve Polgars' Livonia home has brought this area one of its newest shops.

And Nancy Polgar, proprietor of Aladdin's Lamps and Lighting at 33220 Seven Mile, is finding gradually more and more light on the general subject of how to run a new business.

"I've always liked unusual, contemporary furnishing," Mrs. Polgar explained, "and I found I had a real problem when the globe of our fixture shattered one summer afternoon.

By MARGARET MILLER

"I looked all over town, and just could not find a replacement I liked. Finally I decided the only way to get one was to go into business."

THAT REALLY WASN'T the only reason for Aladdin's coming into being at the first of December on the snowiest day of the year.

Nancy had learned, in a couple of shopping center promotion jobs she took after her five children were grown and in school, that she found a lot of stimulation in meeting people and working with them.

Then, too, daughter Janice Wright was studying business at Schoolcraft and interested in working with her mother on a business project, and daughter Donna Polgar also thought it was a good idea.

And still the Polgar home needed that new globe. So Steve, former Livonia city attorney and now in private practice, set about to help his wife find a good spot to sell light.

THE BUILDING they picked for a family business formerly was the office of Dr. Ira Hotchkiss, retired physician and longtime Livonia resident.

"It was interesting," said Mrs. Polgar. "the building was put up originally by John Orr of Livonia, a builder, and it was his sons that did the remodeling work for us."

The big snowstorm wasn't any help to opening day in the shop of lamps and fixtures.

"Not a soul came," Nancy said.

But since then there have been enough visitors to the shop to make this new businesswoman feel she's holding her own in a shaky economy.

"I went to a show for dealers last week," she said, "and as I listened to a lot of people who had been in business a long time I decided I'm not doing too badly."

At Aladdin, Nancy and her daughters handle a wide variety of lamps ranging in price from $20 to $850.

"I'm contemporary-minded," she said, "but I know this area has many traditional homes so we have both kinds."

She particularly likes some of the multi-function lighting pieces her shop offers, and some stained glass and raw copper wall fixtures: So far a few candle-holders are the only items available besides the lamps and fixtures, but when deliveries catch up with orders she'll have some metal wall sculptures for sale.

NANCY ALSO HOPES eventually to be able to offer lamp repair work.

"I come from an electrical family and I know about wiring, so I could do a lot of it myself," she said. "The trouble is, I can't remember the names of the parts I need. I'm always going into a supply store and asking for a whatchamacallit. But I know what I want."

This storekeeper finds a few delays in getting to chores on the home front, but otherwise is delighted with her new venture.

Husband Steve and son Russell, 16 and a sophomore at Bentley, don't seem to mind, she said. Two other sons, Steve, 24 and a Vietnam veteran, and Michael, 18, are students at the University of Texas.

Membership up in Huron Valley Girl Scout Council

In a year when area Boy Scouts are suffering declining membership ranks and youth groups in general have experienced enrollment drops, the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council announces a membership boost of better than 10 per cent.

Mrs. Jo Stevens, executive director for the council that covers Girl Scouts in Plymouth, Canton and parts of Westland, said that on Dec. 31 there were 12,064 girls signed up.

That's a boost of 1,176 green-uniformed girls from the total of 10,888 at the end of 1973.

The increase covered all age groups, Mrs. Stevens said, but the biggest boost was in the ranks of high-school-aged Senior Girl Scouts.

Membership in that division now totals 317, an increase of 47 per cent. There are 20.6 per cent more Brownies, aged six to eight. The number of Juniors, ages nine to 12, went up just 1.3 per cent, and there was an increase of 5.9 per cent in the junior high Cadettes.

"NATIONALLY, YOUTH groups have experienced dropping enrollment over the past few years," Mrs. Stevens commented.

"That's why we are particularly gratified to see this growth in our Girl Scout council. We believe that girls and parents are rediscovering the wonderful opportunities for community service, outdoor experiences and personal growth which girl scouting offers."

The council also shows a statistical increase in the number of troops, 598 by the end of 1974 compared to 482 as 1973 ended.

Of the seven geographic areas that comprise the Huron Valley council, Plymouth-Northville showed the third greatest increase, 11.5 per cent to a total of 1,885 girls. The Wayne-Westland area ranked fourth, up 10.9 per cent to 2,142 girls. Ranking ahead of them were Livingston County and southern Wayne County, covering Belleville, Flat Rock and Romulus.

MRS. STEVENS credited much of the membership growth to the increased ranks and efforts of adult volunteers in the Girl Scout program.

As 1975 began, there were 2,638 adults volunteering their time as troop leaders, assistant leaders, committee members, resource people and council committee members.

"For the first time in six years," Mrs. Stevens said, "we have almost a full complement of more than 100 troop services directors.

"In the past, we have regularly had a third of these positions vacant. These women are the ones who, with the help of professional staff, have recruited leaders and girls, organized troops and worked to gain greater retention of members."

BLUE CHEESE FONDUE may be served as an appetizer or it can be a meal in itself when served with French bread and raw cauliflowerets, green pepper squares, celery pieces, carrots and mushroom slices. Stir together over medium heat until smooth: two eight-ounce packages cream cheese, one cup milk, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, salt and a dash of garlic salt. Add cup crumbled blue cheese. Turn into the fondue pot over canned heat and keep mixture just warm.

TV personalities help fight diabetes

Six woman television newscasters and a former Miss Michigan will serve as fashion models to help the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation raise funds Feb. 11.

The luncheon and fashion show beginning at noon in Raleigh House, Southfield, also will include a jewelry boutique open all afternoon.

Fashions from Claire Pearone of the Somerset Mall will be shown by models including TV news reporters Doris Biscoe and Rebecca Sobel and Marilyn Turner, weather commentator.

Also modeling the fashions will be TV news staffers Terry Murphy, and Beverly Payne, and Jeanette Keramedjian, and Sherry Agnello, Miss Michigan of 1973.

The Michigan chapter of the international organization is one of 42 in the United States dedicated to raising funds for diabetic research. About 90 per cent of all fundraising proceeds go directly into research.

The chapter also plans a country music spectatular March 9 in Stephenson High School in Sterling Heights and a Dollars for Diabetes March in May.

The foundation maintains an office, staffed by volunteers, at 1400 Kirts, Troy. Membership covers the tri-county area, and monthly meetings are held in varied locations.

Most meetings update the members on new theories in diabetic therapy or advances in research.

Tickets for the fashion show and luncheon may be obtained by calling the foundation.

Instead of using butter or margarine on toast, try subsituting jelly, says Marilyn Mook, food specialist at Michigan State University. "It has half the calories," she adds.

Avoid sauces, gravies and toppings. They may taste good but is a tablespoon of gravy worth 65 calories? Besides, few usually stop at one tablespoon.

School cafeterias feel economic pinch

BY SHERRY KAHAN

WESTLAND—Westland students, like Napoleon's armies, travel on their stomachs.

To fill the bottomless pit of their culinary needs, the Wayne-Westland School District spends more than $400,000 yearly on a food program administered by Bill Pearson, assistant superintendent for administration.

He finds that one of his biggest problems is to reconcile nutritional necessities of students with the economic realities of life.

IN OTHER WORDS, says Pearson, "We have definitely felt the economic pinch.

"The bids from food companies now reflect an overall price increase of 21 per cent over last May," he continues, noting that pineapple chunks have gone up 56 per cent, sliced peaches 22 per cent, powdered sugar 82 per cent, brown sugar 146 per cent and corn 23 per cent.

"Canned tomatoes, carrots and applesauce have remained fairly stable."

Last year the district did not break even on its food program. "The year before it made a slight profit, but this year there has been a slight deficit.

"We try not to raise prices except when absolutely necessary. The board of education has a great deal of sympathy for parents and students and has picked up the deficit rather than pass it on to students. Last year our loss was in the neighborhood of $10,000."

PEARSON HAS noticied that the economy has pinched a number of students in a specific way.

"Every day we serve about 375 free lunches and 185 lunches at reduced prices to those who can't afford to buy them. The federal government reimburses us for the cost.

"This is the highest number we have ever had."

Students qualify for these lunches if the income of their parents falls below a certain level. "It is mentioned in federal guidelines that this particular lunch program must be carried out in a manner that does not call attention to the child," says Pearson.

Besides helping individual students, the U.S. government is markedly involved in the district food program in other ways.

"Our food program is used by five junior high schools and one high school—John Glenn," says Pearson. "Wayne Memorial uses catered foods.

"In the junior highs we provide almost exclusively what is called the Type A program for which we qualify if we provide our students with certain nutrients each day.

"Once we qualify, we receive free surplus commodities from the federal government."

From the commodities program, the district in the past has generally received such items as flour, canned vegetables, rice and peanut butter.

But this has been the year of the protein. Little flour has sifted in, but the program has been heavy on cheese, turkey rolls, boned chicken, hot dogs and ground beef.

"Some years we get more than others," says Pearson. "This year it is fairly good. We always accept whatever they send us. They base the amounts on what we have used in other years, the size of the district, and the number of students.

"This program results in a significant saving for the district."

A TYPICAL Type A lunch might include meat loaf, vegetable, salad, fruit and milk.

While the junior highs for the most part serve only the Type A lunch, John Glenn serves a variety of a la carte items in a concession to the present day eating habits of students.

The new emphasis on finger foods may well cause Pearson to fall asleep at night counting hamburgers jumping over a fence. Thousands of them are consumed at John Glenn, along with pizza, tacos and individual sandwiches.

The food not provided by the government is purchased after bids are let out to various food vendors.

"We usually pick the lowest bidder nroviding the company provides quality food," says Pearson, adding that inflation has caused problems in this process also.

"We used to be able to let a bid for six months or a year. Now because of constantly rising prices, they will sign up for only 30 days."

IF PEARSON falls asleep counting hamburgers, Mrs. Jeannine Klay may well do the same counting carbohydrates and protein.

As consultant in the Wayne-Westland food nrogram, she is responsible for the nutritional aspects of what disappears daily down the gullets of hundreds of Westland youngsters. She sees to it that foods offered correspond to demands of federal guidelines.

D'In the Type A program we have to serve at least two ounces of a protein nroduct," says Mrs. Klay. "We also have to serve enriched bread is needed, or its equivalent — two taco shells or a roll, providing they are made with enriched flour."

A teaspoon of butter or margarine must be on hand, either for use on bread or in buttered vegetables. A half pint of milk is also required.

Mrs. Klay tries to cater to the students' tastes in the Type A program as long as they conform with the federal guidelines.

"In these meals we offer a third of an individual's daily food requirements as set up by the Department of Agriculture. We feel that for many students this is the big meal of their day.

"I feel it is important to get nutritional values over to the students. Eating patterns of kids are very poor today. Many families no longer sit down in the evening to eat as a family, so the kids grab a bite from the refrigerator.

"This leads to poor eating. They eat what tastes good, not what is nutritionally good."

THE MAJORITY of students at John Glenn usually turn their backs on the nutrients of the Type A program, placing their money and teeth on a la carte items such as the finger foods already mentioned.

"We admit if a student buys a la carte, he will get an overabundance of carbohydrates," observes Mrs. Klay. "Fried foods, cakes and pies contain a lot of carbohydrates."

The district hoped the milk and malts it offered might help balance these meals. However, Pepsi Cola is now on the menu at the request of the student council.

At Wayne Memorial meals for students are entirely a la carte and are provided by the Michigan Automatic Food Co. of Wayne. If a student picks something that must be heated, he can place it in a microwave oven provided by the school.

Why this school does not take advantage of the Type A program was explained br school principal George Bell.

"It is because of a physical problem in this school. We do not have the space for one large cafeteria, so we have to use two small ones.

"To carry out a Type A program we would have had to double the number of our food service employes and that would have been costly."

From the vending machines the students can purchase food made the night before and delivered to the school. It includes the regular student staples, sandwiches, soup, tacos, pizza and hamburgers.

Because of student interest in eating, Wayne Memorial has a student committee which overseas the food program.

"If the committee decides it wants a different type of food to be sold, the committee will meet with a representative of the company and one of the assistant principals to work out whether it is a realistic demand," says Bell.

Amy Manning, a senior, is chairman of this committee.

"We don't usually meet unless there is a grievance against the cafeteria," she says. "Last year the food was sometimes cold and the machines didn't work. But there is no hassle this year.

"It's not a real active committee unless it has to be. But it is one of the committees that really gives a student a chance to be listened to and to act."

ONE OF THE recent acts of the committee was to send several members to a school board meeting to protest the introduction of the Type A program into Wayne Memorial.

The most popular item consumed at this school is pizza, now at 45 cents, according to a spokeman of Michigan Automatic Foods. "Hamburgers at 35 cents and cheeseburgers at 45 cents come next," says Mrs. Pat Richardson, who is secretary to the company president, Pat Norton.

WILLIAM PEARSON is the central office administrator who has of the Wayne-Westland School District. (Staff photos)

"Each of these burgers has one and a half ounces of meat," she says, adding that beef hot dogs are now selling for 35 cents at the school.

"We have not changed the food a bit, and we try to keep prices down," she adds. "The government has minimum standards, so we have not reduced our quality. Prices were snowballing upward at the end of the last school year, so we raised our prices a little this fall.

"But at the most it has been five cents an item. I think our food is a very good buy.

She believes the fact that sugar is coming down in price is a hopeful sign.

"We can't find enough 15-cent candy bars to place in our vending machines. All Hershey products are now 20 cents. The kids are asking for them so we put in a few at 20 cents.

"Hershey tells us that even with the price of sugar going down, it will not lower the price. They will just change the size.

"You wouldn't believe from one delivery to the next how the size of the bars can go up and down. It's something we have no control over."

MRS. JEANNINE KLAY checks over nutritional guidelines while working on menues to help ensure students get a well-balanced meal.

We'd like to have a serious talk with underpaid savings accounts.

First Federal Savings Plans

There's no better time than right now to take a look at how your savings are doing.

Was last year's interest the best your savings could earn? And is it going to do any better this year?

At First Federal Savings of Detroit, you have a wide choice of savings plans and interest rates. From our 5¼% per year regular passbook savings account all the way on up to our new 7¾% per year Certificate Savings Account—the highest allowed by law on insured savings.

Type of Account	Minimum Amount	Annual Rate	Effective Annual Rate	How And When Paid
Regular Passbook	No Minimum	5¼%	5.35%	Daily interest, paid and compounded quarterly
One-Year Passbook Certificate	$1,000	6½ %	6.66%	Paid and compounded quarterly
2½-Year Passbook Certificate	$1,000	6¾%	6.92%
4-Year Passbook Certificate	$1,000	7½%	7.71%
6-Year Passbook Certificate	$1,000	7¾%	7.98%

Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal from certificate savings accounts.

And your savings at First Federal are insured to $40,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, an agency of the U.S. Government.

So take a look at the chart here and think about your present savings account. If it doesn't measure up, bring it to us and let's talk about a year of greater interest for you.

We can do more for you if you'll think First.

GENE DUFFEY

OPEN DAILY 8:30 A.M. -7:00 P.M.
Mon. & Thurs. 8:30 A.M. -9:00 P.M.
BOB SAKS
SALESMAN OF THE MONTH
GENE DUFFEY, Salesman of the Month for January is no stranger to this honor. According to Bob Saks, "the mark of a good salesperson is his repeat customers year after year, and Gene Duffey has those customers." Many reasons can be cited for such a large returning business, but primarily it's the individual personal attention that Gene gives to each of his customers that keeps them coming back. Through the month of Februrary, BOB SAKS is offering special savings to anyone asking for GENE DUFFEY.

Models Located at 9 Mile and Center Street

The early pioneer life around Northville and Novi is still a charming part of life. And you're also conveniently located – you're almost a neighbor of Ann Arbor, Birmingham and Detroit via I-96, I-696 and other freeways. And the new I-275 freeway is already under construction. Residents of NORTH HILLS can look ahead and be certain that this is a most desirable area; a secure, young and growing area to live. And the longer you live in this area, the more reasons you'll find not to leave it.

All homes in North Hills include underground wiring for all utilities, Detroit water, City sanitary and storm sewer system and are on curved paved streets.
